FRANTIC HUNT FOR WORKERS IN EXPLOSION

Hold Little Hope for Two Dozen Buried in Iron Mine

SIX BODIES RECOVERED

Discouraged Relatives Wait at Entry for Word from Rescuers

Rockwood, Tenn.—(AP)—Two more bodies, making a total of six, were removed at 1:10 Tuesday from the Roane Iron Mining Co. mine where 28 men are believed to have perished in an explosion in Rodgers entry Monday. Those brought out were Clarence Stevens, who had previously been identified in the mine, and a laborer, Philip Gallion. There are believed to be 22 still in the mine.

Rockwood, Tenn.—(AP)—The almost super-human struggle of one miner to escape and his failure, with fresh air and safety but a hundred feet away, was revealed Tuesday as rescue crews penetrated deep into the Roane Iron company's coal mine near here, where an explosion is believed to have taken a toll of at least 25 lives.

Apparently crawling more than 1,000 feet in an effort to reach an air hole, Clarence Stevens fell victim to the deadly "afterdamp" a few minutes before he would have reached safety. Members of the rescue crew which found his body declared.

IDENTIFICATION FAILS

The rescue crew which emerged Tuesday after several hours of exploration of the Rodgers entry where the men were trapped found two other bodies in addition to that of Stevens. None of these three were removed. Identification of the two bodies was impossible.

The first four bodies to be found had been removed to a morgue and identified. Mine officials believe at least 20 more bodies remain in the mine including the three found early Tuesday.

Indications of fire in the explosion zone impeded rescue work Tuesday. Rescue crews were forced to withdraw while "dead-locking" of the dip where the men were trapped, was undertaken to assure safety of rescuers.

Through an underground stretch of nearly three miles, part of it infested with deadly "afterdamp," rescue workers sought Tuesday to reach the other miners, believed killed instantly in an explosion Monday in the Rodgers entry of the Roane Iron company's coal mine near here.

Find Four Men Dead

Two hundred miners are said to have been working in the number two entry at the time of the explosion, but only 32 were in the Rodgers entry where the explosion trapped the men in a manner similar to that which took a toll of 12 lives in almost the same location in July 1925.

BODIES RECOVERED

The four bodies found have been partially identified as George Riddell, W. C. Elliott, Gailther Smith and Harry Lingo, though positive identification was made virtually impossible by their charred condition and the decomposition of the bodies.

Rescue parties worked in shifts throughout the night clearing a passage to the dip where the men were trapped.

MANITOWOC POLICEMAN KILLED BY ASSASSIN

Manitowoc, Wis.—(AP)—Two Roanoke, member of the Roanoke police force, was shot by an unknown assassin at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning when he opened the door of the police office in response to a rap. The shot was fired from a 32 calibre rifle and death was instantaneous, the bullet penetrating Roanoke's wind pipe. The assassin fled.

Roanoke had visited his brother here Tuesday night and returned to Two Rivers after midnight and had visited the night office of the department. No clue to the identity of the murderer or the motive for the crime is known.

Roanoke, who was 45 years old, had been a member of the Two Rivers department for six years. He is married and the father of seven children.

U. S. APPROVES GERMAN PACT WITH FRANCE

Two Nations Have Good Wishes of America in Promoting Harmony

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1926, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Germany will have the good wishes and co-operation of America in developing a Franco-German accord.

This sums up the official attitude here in connection with the speech of Foreign Minister Stresemann who pointed out that his conferences with M. Briand at Thoiry were not intended to be hostile to any outside interests.

Mr. Stresemann's specific declaration that he hoped for the co-operation and good will of the United States and his words of commendation for the policy that has been followed in the last few years toward Germany have been taken to mean here that American aid will be welcomed in reaching an understanding on economic matters.

CONSIDER BANKERS' AID

American banks, of course, under the present administration absolutely opposed to any participation in a political entente but the opportunities of private bankers and American businessmen to participate in economic agreements are fully recognized.

American capital is so abundant these days that a natural outflow toward Europe is expected. To furnish the proper background and make American investors understand the immensity of the task ahead, of Europe, the French and German statesmen are showing every sign of friendliness and every desire to co-operate with each other. This change from an atmosphere of hostility is greeted here with enthusiasm because it is felt that if Europe changes from a mood of revenge or war preparations and settles down to a real peace-time basis on army and navy expenditures so much more money will be available in European budgets for the payment of war debts.

HOPE FOR CONFIDENCE

France in particular has been prevented from balancing her budget because of the necessity of bolstering up some of the buffer states and keeping a good standing army. Now that the American government is hopeful that as the French and German leaders begin to work together the foreign press will cease fomenting suspicion and preserving hatreds and an era of mutual confidence will be inaugurated.

The sympathy of the American government toward loans which will increase the productivity of Europe and enable the people to recover war time losses is well understood. It is now a question of a formula to be worked out by the French and Germans with the aid of the British and American businessmen and bankers. All reports reaching here from Germany indicate that the Germans are aware of the importance of fulfilling their war obligations and that no longer is there any serious doubt that Germany will meet her reparation payments.

BURNING STEAMER REACHES NEW YORK WITH 397 ABOARD

New York—(AP)—The liner Byron of the National Greek line, with 397 passengers aboard, reached port Tuesday with a menacing fire in her afterhold, which spread after it was believed under control. Two city fire boats were ordered to her side at the quarantine station and pumped tons of water into the burning cargo.

Officials of the line assured hundreds of anxious callers that there was no danger to the passengers and that no one had been injured. The fire was reported under control at 9:30. The blaze originated in the cargo from an unknown cause.

DOHENY TRIES TO VALIDATE NAVAL LEASE

Attempt to Prove Denby Act of Best Interest of Nation

Washington—(AP)—Oral argument by which Edward L. Doheny seeks to validate his disputed lease to the Elk Hills Naval Oil reserve in California and his contracts for the construction of storage tanks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, continued Tuesday before the supreme court.

Frederick R. Kellogg was granted an hour by the court to complete the Doheny arguments which began Monday at the opening of the fall term by Frank J. Hogan, leading counsel for the oil operator. Following the conclusion of Kellogg's statement, Owen Roberts and former Senator Allen Pomerene, special government counsel, were granted one hour each in which to present their arguments for cancellation of the lease on the ground of fraud.

Kellogg sought to apply what he contends is the law in the case to the "statement of facts" presented by Hogan who held that the act of 1920 had given the secretary of the navy full discretion in determining the use of oil in the reserves, that former Secretary Denby determined to exercise this authority on the recommendation of Rear Admiral John K. Robison, then chief of the bureau of steam engineering, and decided to have the oil removed from the ground where it was being drained by neighboring private wells, and place it in storage tanks for future naval use.

RUSH RELIEF TO HOMELESS IN ILLINOIS

Situation at Springfield Called Worst in Capital's History

Beardstown, Ill.—(AP)—One hundred city blocks in Beardstown were covered with water at noon Tuesday and the city hall, scene of Abraham Lincoln's defense of Duff Armstrong, was completely surrounded. The Illinois river gauge stood at 24.1 feet but the government forecaster at St. Louis predicted a rise by Thursday to break the 1922 record.

Chicago—(AP)—The retreat of hawking waters from the midwestern areas first hit by the cloudbursts that arrived with October Tuesday carried the flood menace down the courses of the larger tributaries piling on toward the Mississippi.

Along the Kansas-Oklahoma state line the floods were receding but lowlands in central Oklahoma, eastern Missouri and Central and Western Illinois were threatened with further losses in life and property as the crests moved toward the gulf. More homes were hastily abandoned at Beardstown, in west central Illinois where the Illinois river levees gave way before Sunday night's rainfall and let the stream flow into the town. Virtually all of the barrier in front of Beardstown had disappeared.

WORST CONDITIONS

The situation at Springfield was called beyond anything in the history of the state capital.

The river and creeks climbed to flood stages in central Oklahoma as the crest was passed to the north. Dairymen and other tradesmen used boats to feed isolated hundreds.

"With damage to crops and property estimated at millions, there was a growing fear for health," because of threatened water supplies. Colorado and other central Illinois for relief, the midwestern branch of the American Red Cross announced from St. Louis that workers were on their way and Adjutant General Black of Illinois ordered the movement of army supplies into the affected areas.

Geological surveys and promise of clearing dikes by Wednesday over the entire midwest brought hope that the flood had done its worst.

DENIES TESTIMONY IN DAUGHERTY CASE

Adna R. Johnson One of Three Witnesses to Take Responsibility

New York—(AP)—Repeated denials of testimony he gave before the Wheeling-Baltimore congressional investigation committee and before a grand jury featured the testimony of Adna R. Johnson in the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial Tuesday. Johnson, special assistant attorney general under Harry M. Daugherty, wrote the letter that led to the indictment of Richard J. Daley, German metal magnate, of $7,000,000 shares of American Metal Co. shares. He is one of three witnesses to assume responsibility for approving the two claims on which the conspiracy charges against Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller for alien property custodian are based.

As United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner read excerpts from Johnson's previous testimony, some of it given in federal court Monday, Johnson would say that it was not altogether true and correct it.

As court was being adjourned for lunch Mal S. Daugherty was recalled as a witness this time by the defense.

STUDENTS PROTEST AT OUSTING OF PRESIDENT

Seattle—(AP)—Henry Suzzallo, 31 years president of the University of Washington was out of office Tuesday, loser in a fight of two years duration between supporters of Suzzallo's educational program and Governor Roland H. Hartley.

Regents of the university, a majority of whom are appointees of the governor Monday night requested Suzzallo's resignation, effective Tuesday. He declined to quit, protesting that no reasons had been given for his dismissal and that he had no hearing.

The regents then gave him a leave of absence and appointed David Thomson, dean of the college of liberal arts and dean of faculties, as acting president.

Four thousand of the schools' 5,200 students held a torchlight procession through the campus Monday night chanting "Strike, strike, strike!" They gathered in front of Suzzallo's campus home where he asked them to refrain from demonstrations and return to their classes Tuesday.

Bandits Leave Trail Of Wrecked Cars In Wake

Kill Man and Injure Son on Way to Rob Air Mail Train

New Brunswick—(AP)—A trail of wrecked automobiles Tuesday marked the course of the road by two bandits who Monday night killed a Maplewood, N. J. business man and probably fatally injured his 15-year-old son in which the police believe was a desperate race to reach a shipment of registered air mail.

Frank Kearney was slain when he refused to give the men a ride. His son Robert was shot, and his wife was dragged from their automobile. Police believe the bandits were on their way in a powerful car to loot a truckload of valuable air mail due for delivery at Hadley field, near here, when their automobile ran into a ditch.

YOUTHS HELP MEN

The men called on three youths passing in a small sedan for help. The boys aided the men in getting their car back on the road and were paid several dollars for their trouble. They decided to follow the men, and had doubled back along the road when they met their chance acquaintances unexpectedly and the cars collided. Both machines were wrecked, but no one was hurt.

Kearney then drove up with his wife and son. The bandits demanded a lift, which was refused. They shot and killed him, shot the son, and dragged Mrs. Kearney from the machine. One of the bandits shot his companion through the shoulder for showing reluctance to share in the crime.

PITCH DRIVER OUT

The bandits then raced toward New Brunswick in the Kearney automobile but smashed it against a telephone pole a few miles away. They then induced L. B. Scherr to get out of bed and drive them to New Brunswick, but as soon as they started, pitched Scherr out of his own machine, and drove it off.

They crashed through a railroad gate in Stetson a few seconds ahead of a Pennsylvania express train. They abandoned the machine in New York and all trace of them was lost.

COOLIDGE LAUDS IDEALISM OF U. S.

Disasters Prove Red Cross Able to Cope With Needs, President Says

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The success of the American people, in the opinion of President Coolidge, "has not been turned to greed, avarice, or selfishness, but has been 'productive of generosity, benevolence and charity.'"

Speaking before the sixth annual convention of the American Red Cross Monday night in his first public address since returning a fortnight ago from his vacation, the chief executive declared the work of that organization of which he also is president forms "only one example of the innumerable results of American idealism" and that the resources of wealth and prosperity had supplied charities in many other directions.

Support of the Red Cross, he added, "represents idealism applied in a sensible practical, sound way to the real problems of humanity and the public endeavor to realize the superlative ability of this organization to cope with such situations, as the San Francisco and Tokio earthquakes and the recent hurricane in Florida."

PRICE STARTS ACTION FOR BALLOT RECOUNT

Sparta—(AP)—An action to compel the circuit court of Monroe to recount the ballots in the republican senatorial contest in the Thirty-first district has been commenced in the state supreme court by Assemblyman Clinton G. Price of Mauston, defeated for the nomination by Senator Howard Teasdale, Sparta. Price attempted to bring the action in the circuit court but was unable to obtain service on Senator Teasdale in the required time. Teasdale defeated Price by a margin of 32 votes. The motion before the supreme court will be argued at Madison on Friday.

HUNT FOR NEW EVIDENCE FOR AIMEE TRIAL

Keyes Says He Will Prove Evangelist Was in Hotel With Radio Man

Los Angeles—(AP)—Attempts to prove that Aimee Semple McPherson occupied an ocean resort cottage leased by Kenneth G. Ormiston, her former radio operator at Angelus temple, instead of a desert shack in northern Mexico, to which she claims she was carried by kidnappers, found attorneys in a scramble for new evidence, as the third investigation of the evangelist's disappearance entered its second week today.

District Attorney Asa Keyes continued his efforts to support his charges that Mrs. McPherson conspired to obstruct justice by assigning more detectives to search for Ormiston and by the revival of evidence assembled in the second investigation.

Keyes also indicated he would introduce more documentary evidence Tuesday in an effort to prove Ormiston visited the evangelist at a hotel here on the morning of May 18, a few hours before she disappeared.

The state expects to corroborate this evidence by calling as a witness Mrs. Annis Northrop Chambermaid at the hotel where Ormiston is said to have registered under the name of George McIntyre.

"I WAS LOVESICK," MOTORIST'S PLEA IN FATAL MISHAP

Barnstable, England—(AP)—Love-sick motorists are a greater menace to the public than drunken drivers, if the testimony of Dr. James Coburn Anderson may be believed.

Dr. Anderson, driving his car on the wrong side of the road, ran down a motorcyclist and killed him. In his defense he said he was so infatuated with a young girl in North Devon that he had not been able to eat or sleep for days and his mind was blank because of the infatuation.

The housekeeper of the young doctor corroborated Anderson's testimony. The coroner's jury accepted Anderson's story and a verdict was rendered that he drove negligently, but not to the extent of criminality.

HOG CHOLERA IS DISCOVERED ON FARM NEAR APPLETON

STATE SENDS EXPERT HERE TO MAKE TEST

Wait for Anti-toxin to Vaccinate Hogs Against Malady

For the third time in 25 years a serious outbreak of hog cholera has been detected in this part of the state, according to Dr. O. N. Johnson, local veterinarian and Dr. H. D. Larzelere, of the state and federal departments of agriculture. Several hogs have succumbed to the disease and between 12 and 15 are affected and probably will die.

The epidemic was discovered when the local veterinarian received a call last Saturday morning from a farm on Highway 47, about 1 mile north of Appleton, operated by F. C. Mueller where a herd of hogs belonging to W. J. Arnold are kept. Dr. Johnson immediately diagnosed the malady as cholera but was unable to make a specific statement until a postmortem had been held. Dr. G. C. Hill, as Oshkosh veterinarian was called in and a postmortem was conducted and the disease was announced as cholera.

A call was sent to the state department of agriculture at Madison at once and Dr. Larzelere was sent to Appleton. He arrived here Monday morning. Another postmortem was held and the disease was positively declared to be cholera by the state and federal representative.

PART OF EPIDEMIC
"The present outbreak," Dr. Johnson said, "is but a part of the epidemic that is sweeping through the hog belt states of Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, and although Wisconsin is not primarily a hog raising state, unless the disease can be checked at once, serious loss will be caused for the farmers in this district."

To further complicate the condition, there is a shortage of serum which is used to immunize the hogs. Immunization is the only known method of preventing the disease, according to Dr. Johnson.

It will be impossible to receive toxin before Friday, Oct. 8, on which date Dr. Larzelere and Dr. Johnson will make a tour of the farms within a two miles north of Appleton and inoculate the hogs of those farmers who desire to have protection. Once a hog has the disease it is almost impossible to save it, it was pointed out by the doctors.

NO DAMAGE TO HUMANS
There is no danger to human beings, according to Dr. Johnson, as where illness has been a case known where illness was caused to a human being through eating infected meat. The big danger lies in the fact that the refuse of infected hogs is thrown into garbage cans and is in many instances fed to other hogs, thus spreading the disease.

The practice of selling infected animals is not known in Wisconsin, although it is done extensively through the help of unprincipled men, Doctor Johnson said. While there have been two or three small outbreaks of cholera in the past 25 years, the present epidemic is one of the largest and most serious.

The hogs on the Arnold-Mueller farm are to be quarantined and those which have not yet become affected will be vaccinated as soon as serum can be obtained.

Symptoms of the disease which are first noticed are loss of appetite and

KOCH WETS HIS LIPS FOR TASTE OF BEAR STEAKS

Bear roasts, steaks, and chops will be eaten by Dr. A. L. Koch when his 130 pound black bear which was shipped to him from Florence, Co. this week has been cured of its ailment.

The year old cub was killed by Alfred John of Long Lake, Wis., where Dr. Koch hunts deer, and was sent to Appleton Monday afternoon. About 60 or 70 pounds of meat should be obtained, Dr. Koch said.

The animal was displayed in the Hopfensberger company window on Monday and Tuesday morning, but was to be butchered Tuesday afternoon. About 60 or 70 pounds of meat should be obtained, Dr. Koch said.

CHARGES NEIGHBOR TRIED TO KISS HER

Oneida Woman Causes Man's Arrest on Charge of Assault and Battery

Briefly sketched from the story told authorities by Mrs. Anna Schmidt, complaining witness, an ardently expressed neighborly show of affection cost John Freeman, town of Oneida, a trip to Appleton late Monday afternoon to enter a plea of not guilty to a charge of assault and battery preferred by Mrs. Schmidt.

Preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 20, by Municipal Judge Theodore Berg.

According to the complainant Mrs. Schmidt visited her home where Mr. Freeman was engaged elsewhere about the premises after alleged conversation the woman alleged, her neighbor sought to implant a kiss upon her face.

Mrs. Schmidt declares she then seized a handy piece of broomstick and sought to fight off Freeman's advances; he, in turn she says, wrested the weapon away from her. The scuffle, Mrs. Schmidt asserts, was rough enough to convince her she should swear out a warrant for Freeman's arrest.

No testimony was taken Monday. Mr. Freeman is said to be a farmer living near the Schmidt home.

HI-Y CLUB TO HEAR TALK BY H. S. MENTOR

prostration. After a day or two the animals can be moved only with great difficulty and then they waver from side to side and usually fall. They lose control of the rear legs and in damp weather a discharge is noticed from the eyes and nose. The period of incubation of the disease is from 8 to 10 days and usually the hog dies.

If one hog gets the disease, it is very probable that the entire herd will become infected unless all are vaccinated. Since garbage is the most common carrier of the disease, farmers are warned to boil thoroughly all such food which is given to their animals.

PRIEBE ELECTED NEW COMMANDER OF LEGION POST

Veterans Indorse Proposal to Establish Chemical Warfare Bureau

Harvey Priebe, past vice commander of the Oneida Johnston post of the American Legion was elected commander to succeed George Dams, at the regular meeting Monday evening at Elk club. Other officers elected for the year were Clarence O. Baetz, first vice commander; Lester Smith, second vice commander; Fred Heinritz, third vice commander; A. A. Arens, finance officer; E. C. Nielsen, assistant finance officer; A. C. Boller, service officer; Erik L. Madison, historian; Roy Hauert, sergeant-at-arms; John Trautman, chaplain. Installation of the new officers will take place at the meeting on Monday, Nov. 1.

Commander Priebe made a short acceptance speech, thanking his comrades an applauding the post to a busy year. The post adopted a resolution endorsing the national Legion gas protocol which provides for the establishment of a bureau of chemical warfare in the war department. The purpose of the bureau is to make a study of poison gas in war, so that this nation will not be a novice in battle in case other countries again violate the Hague agreement and resort to the use of the gas. F. F. Wheeler explained the gas protocol and it was decided to send the resolution to Congressman George Schneider, requesting his support.

SUPPORT TEBATE
Members of the post were urged to sell enough tickets to fill the chapel for the prohibition debate sponsored by the post Friday evening. Erik Madison and H. H. Heibic, members of the debate committee, reported on arrangements for the speakers and C. O. Baetz reported on the ticket sale. Announcement was made that tickets are on sale at Bellings Drug store and the Novelty Boot Shop.

Arrangements were made for a one-day membership drive which will wind up with a banquet on Armistice night, Nov. 11. Fifty new members already have been signed up. H. L. Plummer stated that while he is in Philadelphia next week attending the national Legion convention he will try to secure Vice President Charles Davis, Colonel "Teddy" Roosevelt or some other prominent Legionnaire to come here to speak at the banquet. Mr. Priebe also will go to Philadelphia as delegate from the Ninth district of Wisconsin.

NAME COMMITTEE TO NOMINATE HI-Y OFFICERS

T. E. Orbuson, John W. Puch and John Goodrich were appointed members of a nominating committee to select a slate of officers for the coming year at the meeting of the Y. M. C. A. The committee will report next Monday evening when the election will take place.

A report of the club's work in the Red Triangle ranch roundup was made and routine business accepted the remainder of the meeting. After the business session the remainder of the evening was spent in a "past history" contest. Each member was required to tell the story of his life.

LAW HAS LITTLE EFFECT ON HOURS WHICH WOMEN WORK

Biggest Result Is in Forcing 'Backward Employees Up to State Standards

Milwaukee — (AP)—While women's hours of labor laws have had little effect in reducing the average number of hours worked by all women employees, they have been valuable in bringing "a small group of backward employees up to the standards of decency," Edward B. Witte, Madison, chief of the Wisconsin Legislative Reference library, said here Tuesday.

Mr. Witte spoke at the Social and Civic Work conference of Wisconsin, in session here today. "In Iowa," Mr. Witte said, "where they have no women's hours of labor law, and Illinois, with a maximum 10 hour day and a 50 hour week, have at least as large a percentage of women who enjoy an 8 hour day, as has Wisconsin, under its maximum 9 hour day and a 50 hour week."

to standards of decency and in securing something like average conditions for the most helpless and unprotected of women employees. Where women's hours of labor are unregulated or standards are low, every investigation has disclosed some women who are required to work unreasonably long hours, although the general average may be quite as low as in the states with the most advanced standards. Similarly, there is everywhere a large percentage of all establishments which work their women employees precisely the maximum hours permitted by law, although the general average is far below the legal maximum.

"Special labor legislation for women is of four general types: (1) prohibitory laws; (2) special equipment laws; (3) minimum wage laws; and (4) women's hours of labor laws.

"Laws prohibiting the employment of women in enumerated occupations are few in number and of little practical importance. The employments prohibited are lines of work in which women are not engaged even where such employments are not prohibited. These laws serve no useful purpose, but, on the other hand, have not detrimentally affected women's industrial progress.

Laws requiring special sanitary conveniences and dressing rooms for women employees are of greater practical importance, but have not become

Supreme court. While such law, may in the future again become a live issue, any discussion of their merits or effects is at present largely academic and historical."

SPRIT CUP RULES ARE ANNOUNCED AT ASSEMBLY MEETING

Contest Opens Friday Morning After Reading of General Rules

Announcement of rules governing the school spirit cup contest and several musical numbers were included on the program of Appleton high school general assembly meeting Friday afternoon.

Wenzel Albrecht, violin instructor at Lawrence conservatory, and Hudson Bacon, piano instructor there, gave some selections. Musical programs at the school are in charge by Carl McKee, director of the high school chorus and glee clubs.

The official opening of the school spirit cup contest followed immediately after the reading of the new rules by Miss Minnie C. Smith, chairman of the faculty committee for the contest.

A hearing of representatives from each class will be held near the end of the first semester when they will present the reasons why their class has claim for the cup. Written reports of the activities of the class for the last semester will be presented to the faculty committee before the closing of the contest at the end of the second semester.

The committee will then decide from this information which class has the highest record.

Points for the contest may be attained through scholarship, attendance and participation in school activities, trying out for school and class athletics, participation in school activities, character forming habits as attendance, tidiness, payment of class dues and others, projects such as sponsoring athletic games and other contests, and the vote of the teachers on the general attitude.

The complete list of the rules will be published in the Tattler, the high school weekly publication, in order that every student in the school will know what he can do to help his class win the cup at the end of the year.

CO. S D AND I WILL HOLD ANNUAL REUNION

The annual reunion of Co. D, Twenty-first Wisconsin Infantry, and Co. I, Thirty-second Wisconsin Infantry, will be held Oct. 8 at Odd Fellow hall.

The reunion will open at 10:30 that morning with a business meeting followed by a dinner at noon. Members of the Womens Relief corps will serve the dinner. A program is being arranged for the afternoon.

Comrade and relief corps from Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna, Hortonville, New London, and Ogdensburg will be invited to the reunion.

FIREMEN CALLED OUT 9 TIMES IN SEPTEMBER

The low run record for so far in 1926 was broken by the fire department during the past month when September reports reveal that only nine runs were made by the department. In only one instance, it was pointed out, was damage of any magnitude reported. This was to a home damaged to the extent of between $500 and $700, it was stated. One run was a double alarm where a mistake took the apparatus out twice to one fire. One false alarm was included.

ANYBODY KNOW BARNEY SHAY? RULE SEEKS HIM

Inquiry into the whereabouts of Barney Shay, who is said to have formerly lived near Appleton, is made by Mrs. G. M. Philpott of Bellingham, Wis., in a letter to Mayor Albert C. Rule. Barney Shay was one of three brothers of a Shay family which lived about six miles from this city and was a cook in logging camps for a number of years according to the letter. Information about Emil Bolinski also is sought by Mrs. Philpott. Anyone having any knowledge of either of these men should communicate with Mayor Rule.

PINE GROVE NEWS COMES OFF PRESS

Publication Edited by Students Carries Neighborhood, School News

Carrying items of neighborhood and school news, a poetry and joke column and a special department devoted to an intricate crossword puzzle the first fall edition, the September number, of The Pine Grove News, published by the Pine Grove school, is off the press and has been distributed to its clients.

Although several strictly school papers are operated throughout the county the Pine Grove edition is the first one to have been presented to its reading public so far this year. It was reported by County Superintendent A. G. Meating. Several cartoons of considerable artistic merit also decorate its pages.

Literally the "press" is pencil and paper in this particular instance but arrangements are being considered, Mr. Meating said, to go into the "publishing" business more extensively with the aid of a mimeograph for "special editions" during the year.

The editorial staff of the Pine Grove paper is comprised of Editor Marcela Berezinsky, Assistant Editor George Samson, Reporter Martha Vandenberg and Reporter Gladys Berezinsky. Cartoonists for this issue are George Samson and Joseph Vandenberg.

Contributors are: Elsie Jesse, Helen Dombrowski, Marcela Berezinsky, George Samson and Norbert Van.

CASES HEARD SOON IN CIRCUIT COURT HERE

Outagamie county is the rare exception in circuit court annals in the fact that virtually every case on any given calendar is disposed of at the term of court for which it is set or the term immediately following. It was reported Monday by Harry A. Shannon, clerk of circuit and municipal court. In many counties cases are called year after year where the litigants, usually the defendants, have disappeared but where the indictment, if a criminal case, is allowed to stand. This most often occurs, it was brought out, where the defendant has been under indictment for a crime and has escaped from jail. In Waukesha county a case of such a nature has been called at each term of circuit court for more than 20 years.

FIVE ARE NABBED OVER WEEKEND FOR TRAFFIC "ERRORS"

Motorist Should Acquaint Self With Law to Prevent Violations

Appleton police over the weekend established a record of making at least one arrest in virtually every division of possible traffic law violations as part of a campaign to make the city streets safe for careful motorists. It was pointed out by Chief George T. Prim. Reckless driving and overtime parking were the only two sections of the city ordinances governing automobile driving, where arrests are not uncommon, not to be included. One drunken driver, one speeder, one arterial jumper, one driver who parked too far from the curb and one driver who parked his car in front of a motion picture house, fell into the hands of the police.

With the exception of the latter the defendants all appeared and were fined in municipal court.

A review of the statutes and ordinances in effect in the city will show any motorist that police persecution does not exist and patrolmen have strict orders against the development of speed traps or in resorting to any subterfuges in making arrests, the chief said.

The laws are simple and any person who does not acquaint himself with the ordinances or who carelessly disregards them, does so at his own risk, it was declared.

EGG PRICES REACH SEASON'S HIGH MARK

Egg prices at the present time, according to Appleton dealers, have reached the high mark of the season, even though the present price is considered only fair for this time of the year. Fresh eggs retail at 45 cents per dozen and storage eggs at 40. The low price during the laying season was between 25 and 25 cents per dozen.

Chickens are moulting at the present time and consequently are not laying. Moulting will continue until about the middle of December. At this time the spring chickens will be on to lay and egg prices will drop, providing there is not a big demand for eggs for storage.

ABANDONED BOY FOUND ON ROAD NEAR MILWAUKEE

Report Child Had Lived With Grandmother in Neenah During Summer

Neenah—It was reported from Milwaukee Monday afternoon that a 9-year-old boy giving his name as Edward McNamee, who had been visited his grandmother in Neenah during the summer had been picked up Sunday night along the road south of Milwaukee, where he had been abandoned by his stepfather, William Fiedick of Madison. The story further states that the grandmother in Neenah, whose name could not be learned, had become ill and could not keep the boy with her and sent for the stepfather who came Sunday morning and took the boy away. An attempt, the report states, was made by Fiedick, to place the boy in St. Aemilian's orphanage in Milwaukee, a place where the boy had previously been, but was refused this time owing to the fact that he had been found on the road. The stepfather, after being refused, started out from Milwaukee and on a mile or so outside the city limits, pushed the boy with his baggage out of the car to care for himself the best he could. The boy was picked up by Hans Quamme, a coast guard, who was on his way to Milwaukee from Racine, and turned the boy over to the police. Arrangements are being made to return the boy to his mother who was divorced from his first husband and married to Fiedick. Neither the names of McNamee and Fiedick could be found in Neenah nor have there been people by that name here in the last few years.

MENASHA MAYOR INDORSES WORK FOR BOY SCOUTS

Says Modern Boys Need Recreational Training and Guidance

Menasha—A large group of Menasha Wooden Ware scouts attended the weekly meeting of scouts at the company's cafeteria Monday evening. The troop had as their guest Mayor N. G. Remmel. When the mayor entered the room he was greeted with stirring applause. The mayor's talk to the boys was earnest and impressive. In his remarks he said every father wants his son to be a better man than he is—that it is the height of every father's ambition. "Possibly it is only natural that the boys would be better than their fathers, for the dads did not have the chance that you boys have," he said.

"Scouting," he declared, "was not available to them. The only opportunity the boys had to meet in groups was in school and in church. It was necessary in most instances to walk a long distance to school and fortunate indeed was the boy who could attend after he was 12 or 13 years of age."

"Today the biggest men in the country are standing back of the boy scout movement, and why? Because they want good men in their communities, and they want good men in industry."

"The city fathers have found it wise to provide recreational facilities for the boys and girls and I believe that it is a wonderful thing for the youth of Menasha. When I was a boy special playgrounds were not necessary for there were many open spaces where we could enjoy the games of the day without being in any danger of being hurt by an automobile; and the greater part of our time was taken up doing work such as we could do."

"But today we want children to have an education. We want them to become as you repeat in the scout oath, 'Mentally awake and morally straight,' and up to a certain point I know of nothing that will develop this faster in boys and girls than recreation and education. That advantage of every opportunity you have today. Possibly some thing will happen in your opportunities—so make the most of each day you are in school."

"Some boys seem to have a little easier than others; some have it a little harder. But that won't hurt a thing. It is possible that they may become much better for having assumed responsibility at an early age; and as for happiness there is nothing that can ever make any boy or young man happier than to know that he is fair and square with his father and mother."

At this point the mayor illustrated to the scouts some of his experiences as mayor in dealing with boys who go wrong. He urged the boys to attend church regularly, assuring them of the influence it has been to him during his life. His closing remark was, "Be a man and do the things that real men do. Do only the thing that is right and square."

BIG REGISTRATION IN NIGHT SCHOOL

Large Number of Pupils Enroll for Evening Class Instruction

Menasha—Monday night was registration night in Menasha evening school at Menasha high school building. The registration was exceptionally large, particularly in cabinet making, commercial department and in the dressmaking department, insuring the largest registration for the coming year in the history of the school. It is possible that two classes, one in drafting and the other in music, will be started very soon as there are practically enough registrants in each to warrant it. New classes in papermaking will be started Thursday, Oct. 7. The subjects offered by the evening school are bookkeeping, typewriting, shorthand, business English, spelling, arithmetic, art, furniture making, machine shop, paper making, dressmaking, art, needle work, cooking and citizenship. The school will be in session every Monday and Thursday evening.

COUNCIL ACTS ON UTILITIES BOARD

Mayor Ready to Make Appearances if Ordinance Is Adopted

Menasha—Menasha common council will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday evening. The most important business to be disposed of is the appointment of a commission of five aldermen to take over the management of the municipal waterworks and electric light plant. In the event the ordinance introduced at the last meeting is adopted the appointment of the commission will be made by Mayor N. G. Remmel at once.

Menasha—The heavy wind Monday blew down a portion of a sign belonging to Collip-Vogel & Co. Main-st. No one was injured and no damage resulted.

GALE TEARS DOWN TREES IN WESTERN SECTION OF CITY

High winds that almost reached the velocity of hurricane weather Monday tore tops from many trees in Appleton and in one instance on Carver-ave. Men down large elm which obstructed traffic until it could be moved from the street, it was reported. No property damage resulted and the gales seemed to concentrate largely in the one section of the city.

NOTIFY CREDITORS OF SALE OF MILL

Lawyers Say Receiver Will Liquidate Remaining Assets and Close Estate

Menasha—The law firm of Bouck, Hilton, Klavin, & Dempsey of Oshkosh and J. P. Frank of Appleton, attorneys for the receiver, Hugh Stranice of Menasha, have sent out notices to the creditors of the Island Paper company, advising them that the sale of the Island Paper company land, plant and equipment to Norman E. Brokaw for $75,000 was confirmed by the circuit court at Oshkosh Saturday Oct. 2. The purchaser has until Oct. 11 to make the balance of his payment, $50,000.

The notice is dated Oct. 4 and says that the receiver is going to make every possible effort to liquidate the remaining assets and close up the estate. It ought to be closed up during the present month, the notice says.

If anything should arise, which would tend to delay the closing of the estate within that time a partial dividend will be paid, but there is no apparent reason why there should be any delay, it declares.

SOCIAL ITEMS AT MENASHA

Menasha—Miss Leona Fleweger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Fleweger, 217 Garfield-ave, and Arthur Bell of Appleton, were married at 6 o'clock Saturday evening at Trinity Lutheran church by the Rev. J. G. Polley, pastor. The attendants were Miss Vera Fleweger, sister of the bride, and Bruno Bell, brother of the bridegroom. The ceremony was followed by a wedding supper at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Bell left the same evening on a wedding trip to the northern part of the state. Upon their return they will make their home in Menasha, where Mr. Bell is engaged in business as a member of the Valley Cylinder Grinding company on Tayco-st.

Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Picard were surprised Sunday afternoon at their home on Second-st by a group of friends in honor of their tenth wedding day anniversary. Cards were played and a dinner was served.

Miss Josephine Cheslock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Cheslock, Milwaukee, and Herbert Naek of Kaukauna were married at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at St. John church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. B. Polazyk, pastor. The attendants were Miss Grace Naek, sister of the bridegroom, and Harry Cheslock, brother of the bride. The wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride's parents and was attended by the bridal party and immediate relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Naek left for Chicago on a week's trip. They will reside in Kaukauna, where the bridegroom is in the employ of the Northwestern Railway company.

FIRE TAKES TOLL $1,040 A MINUTE, FIRE-CHIEF SAYS

McGillan Tells Lions Club How to Reduce Huge Fire Losses

"Appleton had the lowest per capita fire loss last year of any city in the state of Wisconsin of 20,000 population or over," Chief George P. McGillan told the Lions club at the weekly luncheon at Conway hotel Monday noon. Chief McGillan told of the purpose of Fire Prevention Week which is being observed in Appleton and all over the country this week.

The per capita loss in Appleton for 1925, was 1.12, according to Chief McGillan. In 1921 the fire loss was $10,451.23; 1922, $11,407.95; 1923, $18,137.12; 1924, $60,860.42; 1925, $27,398.03. The total is $123,254.78 and the average loss per year was $25,650.95.

In 1921, the local department answered 158 calls; 1922, 159 calls; 1923, 227; 1924, 216; 1925, 254; a total of 1,036 calls with an average of 207 calls per year.

"In the past year," the chief said, "there have been more than 525,000 fires with an average loss of $1,000, or a total loss of more than $570,000,000."

FIRE LOSS INCREASES

During the last five years, according to the chief, there has been a tremendous increase each year in the amount of the fire loss. In the last 50 years the population of the country increased 150 per cent while the fire loss increased more than 630 per cent, or ten times faster than the average of all the countries in Europe. In 1870 the annual fire loss was $19 per minute and today the loss is about $1,104 per minute.

"In addition to the actual tremendous loss caused to the owners of the property destroyed by fire," declared the chief, "fires cause an increase in taxes for every man and woman in the country."

The chief explained that as soon as property was destroyed by fire it was removed from the tax roll and was not replaced until it was rebuilt. The budget calls for a certain amount of money and when this property loss of $570,000,000 is removed from the tax list, it means that several hundred thousands of dollars in taxes are placed on the tax list of those who did not suffer the losses.

"Beside the tremendous fire waste, of which from 75 to 95 per cent is preventable and caused through carelessness, there is the sad and wanton and least excusable of all wastes, the loss of human life," the chief declared.

15,000 LOSE LIVES

More than 15,000 people lost their lives through fire, an average of one every half-hour, during the past year and 17,000 more were permanently crippled or disfigured, according to Mr. McGillan. The majority of this number were women and children.

More than 50 per cent of all the first take place in homes and are caused through carelessness, the chief said. There is one home fire every four minutes. In addition to this, every day on an average, five schools, five churches, fifteen hotels, one hospital, four warehouses, ninety-six farm buildings, six department stores, two theatres, eight public garages, three printing plants and three dry goods stores are burned.

Chief McGillan then gave a list of "Don'ts" which deal particularly with fires which are preventable. They are:

- Don't permit rubbish to accumulate in basements, attics, closets, workshops or any place around the premises. Clean property seldom burns.
- Don't keep ashes in wooden boxes or deposit them against wooden buildings or partitions.
- Don't change your own electrical wiring. Consult a competent electrician.
- Don't burn trash or rubbish near buildings.
- Don't hang electric light cords on nails.
- Don't fail to take precautions with electric flat irons and curlers. Always use a signal light, then you will know when they are on and off.
- Don't pass smoke pipes through ceilings, roofs of wooden partitions without proper precautions.
- Don't forget to have your flues cleaned, examined and repaired at least once a year.
- Don't fail to provide screens for open fire places.
- Don't connect gas stoves, heaters or hot plates with rubber hose.
- Don't use kerosene, benzine or naphtha to kindle or quicken the fire.
- Don't thaw frozen pipes by applying a blow torch or open flame of any kind.
- Don't allow gasoline to stand in an open dish in the house.
- Don't go into closets with a lighted match or candle.
- Don't allow children to play with matches.
- Don't fail to remember that there is always danger in a discarded cigar or cigarette stub.
- "Always be courteous to the fire inspector," said the chief, "as he is working for your own benefit. Many ignorant people object to his visits."

RESUME BUS SERVICE TO LAKE SHORE CITIES

Busses operating between Sheboygan and Appleton have been started by the Grey Motor Coach lines after a cessation of business for two years. The company will run busses twice a day, it was said.

The route of the company passes over state highways 22, 57, 114 and 15, the announcement stated. Towns in the itinerary of the grey cars include Menasha, Sheboygan, Hillsboro, Chilton, New Holstein, Kiel, Elkhart Lake, Franklin and Howard's Grove.

DIRECTORS OF WOMANS CLUB HOLD MEETING

The board of directors of Appleton Womens club will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon, according to an announcement made by Mrs. S. C. Shannon, executive secretary of the club. The meeting will follow the luncheon for the workers in the financial campaign of the club which will be attended by many of the board members, it was said.

Business to be considered at the general meeting of the club on Thursday, Oct. 14, will be discussed and the progress made in the financial campaign will be reported.

GAME CLASSES OF WOMANS CLUB START THIS WEEK

Volleyball and basketball classes under the auspices of the Appleton Womens club will be started this week. Miss Agnes Vanneman, physical director of the club stated. The enrollment in these activities will not be completed until after the classes have met, it was said.

The first meeting of the group of girls interested in playing volleyball will be held at the Appleton high school gymnasium at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening and of the basketball class at 7 o'clock Thursday evening.

All classes in gymnasium work will be in charge by Miss Vanneman.

MENASHA PERSONALS

Mrs. William G. Trilling, Mrs. H. O. aHugh, Mrs. Arthur Wille, Mrs. J. R. Hafstrom and Miss Alma Beisel left Tuesday for Madison to attend the annual meeting of the Grand Chapter of the Eastern Star. They will be absent until Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Clinefist have gone to California, where they will spend the coming winter.

Attorney S. L. Spengler attended the annual meeting of stockholders of the Northern Fur Farms corporation of Wisconsin at New London Tuesday.

Miss Estelle Mahofski and Miss Agnes Kilisch visited Green Bay friends Monday.

NO EXTRAVAGANCE AMONG EMPLOYEES

Milwaukee, Wis.—(AP)—Social workers of today must meet the "fallacy" that all of the workers are rolling in high wages," Miss Mary E. McDowell, commissioner in the Chicago department of public welfare said here Monday night before the Social and Civic Work conference for Wisconsin.

In her address on problems of dealing with public opinion in welfare work, Miss McDowell said the idea that workers had secured a wage that workers were plentifully supplied with money was prevalent on every hand.

"We must meet and combat the idea that workers ride in motors and wear silk stockings and shirts," she said. "That fallacy began during the war—the story of the extravagance of the wage earners. I found it in London and Paris in 1913, when I was told of the extravagance of the munition workers who for the first time in their lives had secured a wage that they had never dreamed of and the story went that they were spending their money for furs and jewelry, etc."

"There are, of course, skilled workers who have good incomes but they do not represent the mass of wage earners."

CARS COLLIDE

Menasha—Carl Drexler, Keyes-st, while driving his car Monday evening collided with Joseph Schoul, who was riding a bicycle at the corner of Main and Racine-sts. The bicyclist's leg was injured and his wheel was damaged.

Dr. H. A. Wolter of Green Bay spent the weekend visiting his brother, Otto Wolter.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Russell of Fond du Lac were guests at the home of Mrs. L. F. Packard, Monday and Tuesday.

GIVE ANOTHER SWIM PERIOD TO PRO GIRLS

Business and professional women may swim at the Y. M. C. A., swimming pool from 5:30 to 6:15 on Wednesday evenings as well as from 7 to 7:45 and from 7:45 to 8:30. Miss Agnes Vanneman, physical director at the Appleton Womens club announced Tuesday. No class had been planned for this hour but the number of calls from girls who preferred to swim before going home from work at night necessitated the change, it was said. All swimming classes will be held for the first time on Wednesday, Oct. 6, Miss Vanneman said.

More than 100 women and girls have enrolled in the classes, the director stated, and registrations will be taken at the club throughout the season. Tank suits and towels will be provided and laundered by the club. The schedule for classes will be as follows: Matrons, 10:30 to 11:15; college girls, 2:30 to 3:15; matrons, 3:15 to 4 o'clock; beginning class for school girls, 4 o'clock to 4:45; advanced class for school girls, 4:45 to 5:30; professional women, 5:30 to 6:30; and an open period, 8:30 to 9:15.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The LANES are an average American family, hard up, but ambitious to better themselves.

There is MRS. LANE, fat, middle-aged, a chronic semi-invalid, not too good tempered, and not too good natured. Her husband, JIM LANE, the husband and father, a carpenter, who hopes to become a contractor on a small scale.

JUNIOR, 21, nicknamed Long Lane, lovable, irresponsible, rather wild.

FAITH, 20, mainstay of the family, tall, splendid looking, but not pretty.

CHERRY, 18, a typical flapper. JOY, 9, who is always making embarrassing "breaks," and who knows everyone's affairs.

When the story opens both Junior and Cherry have lost their jobs. Cherry maintaining that she had to leave her employer because he "looked fresh" with her. Mr. Lane asks Faith, the stay-at-home drudge, to cook an especially nice dinner, since he has invited BOB HATHAWAY, a young business man with whom he hopes to land a contract to build two bungalows. Cherry receives a telephone call from CHESTER HART, who has been Faith's "steady," and arranges that he is to pick her up a block from the house so that Faith will not see them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

"Oh Faith!" Cherry, looking as cool as a water lily in her petticoat and green organdy, her vivid face framed in a drooping-brimmed Leghorn hat, popped into the kitchen where Faith was at the sink, scraping egg breakfast dishes.

"Be an angel and clean my pink georgette! I've got to rush downtown and get my application in at the agency. May get a try-out today, who knows? I won't be home for lunch."

Joy, swathed in one of Faith's long aprons, flitted her tea towel alarmingly close to Cherry's carefully tinted face. "I heard you at the telephone, Cherry Lane! You was flirting with Chester Hart! He's going to take her to town in his car, Faith!"

"You little liar!" Cherry seized her small sister by the shoulders and shook her fiercely. "I'll make Mother attend to you, you little devil! Don't you believe a word she says. Faith, I wouldn't lift a finger to—"

"Oh, it's all right, Cherry," Faith said, and thumped a stack of plates into the sink so hard that they rattled. "If Chester likes you better than he does me, you can have him! Don't think for a minute that I want him."

"Well, neither, od I!" Cherry laughed with relief. "He's a funny old fellow, isn't he? And his hands perspire—ugh! Didn't you notice it when he tried to paw you, Faith?"

"He knew better than to try it," Faith said grimly. "You'd better run along, Cherry. There'll be a dozen girls ahead of you. Bring me a skein of dark red embroidery floss, won't you? I need it for Joy's tan linen dress. She wants to wear it the first day of school."

Mrs. Lane had settled herself grumpily at a window of the dining room—a window which commanded a view of Myrtle Street, on which their down-at-the-heels, six-room house stood. In her drooping-puffed hands was her inevitable tatting.

From the dining room, too, Mrs. Lane was able to keep her eye on Faith's activities, and to make her criticisms, advice and general comment heard, no matter where Faith was working.

When the dishes were done, the rickety old gas range swabbed off and the kitchen floor swept, Faith was ready to tackle the bed-making and cleaning.

"Mom, can I go over to Grace's? Her dog's got four new puppies, and she said she'd give me one—"

Joy demanded shrilly. "Oh, for goodness sake, yes! It's just so, so, go from morning to night! But I'll wear you out if you bring one of them puppies into this house. We got enough hungry mouths to feed as it is. Now, fly up! Not a word out of you!"

Faith began her housecleaning at the living room; smoothed the rumpled sheets, clamped down the fat pillow which Junior's head had pumpled during the hot night, and, breathing heavily with the effort, folded up the davenport.

An empty candy box on the floor, spewing out its fluffed paper cups, drew Faith's eye. She picked it up and threw it into the wastebasket.

"Why did every last one of them throw things on the floor for her to pick up? Chester stubs in a cracked saucer if Dad had seen them. Junior would have been given a stiff calling-down, even if he was twenty-one."

"Mrs. Mitchell has been standing on her front porch for the last half hour, talking to a smart-Aleck book agent," Mrs. Lane called out to Faith. "If her husband could see how she goes on, eyes and flashes her dimples at every young squirt that comes along—"

"She'll hear you, Mother," Faith warned her, as she fluted a cedar-colored rag over the "library table" and the broken-springed Morris chair—Dad's favorite, though he didn't have much time to enjoy it, for one of Cherry's young men was always sprawling in it.

"I guess I know what I'm doing!" Mrs. Lane said tartly. "He's going, I do believe! And she give him an order for a book. Don't answer the doorbell if he comes here, Faith!"

"I won't," Faith promised her rather grimly. "I wish you'd make Cherry give you the ten dollars for last month's installment on the piano," she continued, as her oiled rag that Cherry had bought "on time" and which Mr. Lane was paying for the long piano bench, ringed and stained and burnt with cigarette ends.

"What are you doing in there, Faith?" Mrs. Lane, who had ignored the remark about the installment on the piano, demanded after a bit. "Taking down the curtains," Faith called back. "They're a sight—yellow with sunburn and dust. I can't see how I'm going to have time to wash and iron these tonight, but Dad's coming on making a good impression on this Bob Hathaway."

She took her armful of dusty curtains to the kitchen, piled them into a zinc wash tub, sprinkled them with soap powder, and left them to soak in hot water until the first of the house was cleaned.

Then, feeling that there were not enough minutes in the day ahead of her for half the work that had to be done, she hurried into her parents' bedroom. She picked up from the floor her mother's enormous, fattening-trimmed "domestic" nightgown, and her father's nightshirt, and hung them in the closet. Then she yanked sheets and pillows from the bed, and with a mighty heave of her strong young arms, turned the mattress.

Faith spread the rumpled sheets smoothly, then from the top shelf of the closet took a fresh, starched bedspread, gay with appliqued morning glories—Faith's own handwork—and made the bed look dainty and inviting. Dad would be sure to bring young Hathaway in here to show him the picture of himself in the Elks convention at St. Louis. Cherry wouldn't let it hang in the living room. With vigorous strokes of her broom, Faith swept the faded Japanese matting, then wielded her dust cloth over the bed, dresser, chairs and pictures.

Then, with a feeling of resentment rising hotly in her throat, she went into Cherry's room. It was always in a state of wildest disorder after Cherry had dressed—two or three pairs of slippers kicking about the brown-painted floor; the three small rugs of rose-pink chenille, navy, and blue, scattered about; a slightly soiled peach silk kimono, half on the low chair, half on the floor; the pink georgette for Faith to clean and press hanging limply over a chair-back.

Why wouldn't Cherry at least make her own bed? As Faith seized the rumpled pillow, a letter fell to the floor. She picked it up, looked at the dashing handwriting below the picture of a Chicago hotel on the face of the envelope. On the back, in the space for a return address was a name Faith had never heard Cherry mention—Albert Ettleson, Care of The Top Gas Range Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

So Cherry had been "picking up" a traveling man! As if she didn't have enough home-town boys hanging around the house, keeping her out so late every night that she couldn't hold a job to save her life!

But there was even in Faith's heart as she dropped the letter into Cherry's fluted top dresser-drawer. How did she do it? Boys had buzzed around her like bees around a honeypot since her grammar school days. And Faith had had only two or three sweethearts in the five years she had been allowed to "go with the boys"—Benny Gorman whom other girls wouldn't have anything to do with; Arthur Higgins, who was working his way through college, but whom Cherry made fun of because he was the son of a butcher and Chester Hart. Now Cherry had vamped Chester away from her.

Faith's footsteps dragged as she went into the room she shared with Joy. Without intending to do so, and despising herself for her weakness, she took a small package of letters from her own bureau drawer and sat down on her unmade bed to read them. Not many of them—Chester had been out of town very seldom in the year that he and Faith had "gone together." Stiff, uninteresting letters, little more than notes, chronicling the weather, his health, his humdrum activities. "Saw a great show last night—'Rain'. Gee, it was great! Wish you had been there with me. It's hot as blazes today."

Of course she hadn't been in love with Chester Hart! Stupid, heavy things! But as she tore the letters and post cards to bits, she dropped angry, hurt tears upon them. After all, he had been someone to go about with; someone to take her to the movies; to the country on Sundays in his flivver. And Cherry hadn't needed him. Now there was no one—

But there was too much to be done for Faith to spend many minutes in grieving for a man she had never loved anyway.

Seven hours later Faith heard her father calling her, in his jovial company-manners voice, to come to the living room to meet Bob Hathaway. She tucked in a strand of straying brown hair—she had never bobbed it—dabbed at her flushed face with the powder put she had concealed in the pocket of her one-piece, much-washed pongee dress, gave a last quick glance at the dinner table, and, walking slowly and with the dignity which was her heritage, went to meet the man on whom her father was counting so heavily. She must try—oh, she must try hard, she told herself—to make a good impression.

"Mr. Hathaway, like you to meet my daughter, Faith, the pick of the lot. She's been adding another cup of water to the soup for you."

Faith's heart leaped in her breast as her hand went into the warm clasp of Bob Hathaway. How could she ever have wept, even in anger, for Chester Hart?

SOUSA'S FAMOUS BAND TO PRESENT VARIED PROGRAM

Selections Will Be Humorous, Military and of More Serious Nature

Humorous, military, and more serious selections will characterize the program of the thirty fourth annual tour of Lieut. Comm. John Philip Sousa and his famous band which will play in Appleton at Lawrence Memorial chapel on the afternoon and evening of Oct. 11 under auspices of the Community Artist series.

The versatility of Sousa's programs always has been a joy to his audiences, but this year he has made an even greater effort to include a larger number and increased variety of numbers. Because of present interest of American music lovers in American negro music, as evidenced by the popularity of the spirituals, the work of R. Nathaniel Dett, an American negro composer, will be represented in Sousa's programs this year.

The "Tuba Bunch" from the suite "In the Bottoms" will be the number offered by Sousa. This movement which Sousa will play "probably is the most characteristic number of the suite as it portrays more of the social life of the people," the author has said.

Other comedy selections which will be heard this season by the band will be "The Wets and the Dries," "Oh, How I've Waited for You," and "Jazz America." One of Sousa's own compositions. There is also a variety program, whose chief number "Saxer-

cuts fuel costs 25% or more

WHEN FLAX-LI-NUM is built into the outer walls and roof of a home, heating cost is cut 25 to 33%. Each year this saving continues. In a few years the FLAX-LI-NUM has more than saved its cost. Its benefits continue throughout the life of the house.

Remember this when you build or buy. It is easy to insulate with FLAX-LI-NUM when you build. Its cost is no more than a good piece of furniture. Its first cost is the last — because FLAX-LI-NUM will never rot, bulge, crack or fall. Once in, it's there to stay.

FLAX-LI-NUM is made from flax fibre, treated to make it vermin proof. It has the strength and toughness of unbleached linen. It comes in semi-rigid sheets, easy to handle and install. One-half inch thick for side walls, a full inch for roof and ceilings.

The distributor or anyone of the dealers listed below can supply you with full information regarding this effective material, or write direct to the Flax-li-num Insulating Co., St. Paul, Minn.

THE CORRECT BUILDING INSULATION AND SOUND CONTROL MATERIAL

BE PARTICULAR when it comes to Plastering!

CLIMAX WOOD MORTAR USED IN THIS HOME TO ASSURE WALLS AND CEILINGS OF EVERLASTING BEAUTY

Too much of the interior beauty, and hence resale value of your home, depends on the enduring perfection of its walls and ceilings to merely specify "plastered walls and ceilings" when building. You can and should have assurance that those walls and ceilings will remain in fine condition for many years to come. It's easy to achieve; simply employ a good plasterer and insist that he put on Climax Wood Mortar.

As indicated in the panel, walls of Climax Wood Mortar will withstand abuses no other plaster can; and will not crack except under very severe stress. They are much stronger and elastic; for Climax walls are all plaster, not 1/2 plaster and 1/2 sand as is the ordinary wall. Climax is put on just as it comes to the job — all pure gypsum (rock) combined with wood fibre, the perfect bonding and insulating material — water only being added.

There is nothing to compare with good plastered walls and ceilings for beauty and permanence. Why not then assure yourself the very best by specifying Climax Wood Mortar.

Our free booklet "Walls of Everlasting Beauty" will prove both interesting and valuable to you. Send for it now while you have it in mind.

ATTRACTING THE TOURIST

We read that Door county, through its resort association, is to advertise that locality extensively next year in order to increase its already substantial tourist patronage. We do not think it is an exaggeration to say that Door county potentially offers more to delight the summer pleasure seeker than any other county in Wisconsin, and as much as any spot to be found in northern United States. Certainly its scenery, surroundings and natural attractions are unsurpassed. Nature has done much for this strip of land lying between Green Bay and Lake Michigan, and man has done comparatively little to spoil nature's endowments. Much of the locality is in a primitive state. The life of its people is simple and tranquil and therefore most engaging to the visitor. We regret to see the day when Door county will have been commercialized to the extent that it loses its natural adornments and its local colorings. A picturesque Norwegian homestead, a lonely fisherman's cabin, vistas of cedar, birch and juniper, sea gulls soaring against lofty and rocky bluffs, a quaint church planted amidst old gravestones and sweet smelling balsam, the rippling and white-capped surface of bay or lake, are more alluring to the eye than all the beauties the greatest landscape gardener could devise. Where is there anything more beautiful than the sudden view of Ephraim as one rounds the southerly descent to that lovely village? Heaven postpone the day when it shall be ruined by the hand of the modern craftsman.

Door county has it over all of them in possibilities. It has climate, scenery, fine air and everything that conspires to make out door life invigorating and healthful. It can be exploited as far as ingenuity and enterprise may wish. We would, however, offer a few suggestions to those who plan its exploitation. The first is to keep it in as near a primitive and natural state as possible. Better hotels can be provided without ruining the exterior. An improvement in the food offered at many of the hotels and resorts could be made with benefit to the tourist business as a whole. Better food and slightly better accommodations will attract those who have money and like to spend it on good living, and it is this kind of patronage that pays.

Finally, the outstanding need of Door county is first-class facilities for golf. A fine golf course will take those of means who go away for the summer or winter to almost any spot. The lack of it will keep most of them away. A good golf course is an absolute necessity to resort life and seekers of outdoor enjoyment. A golfer will put up with anything if he can chase the ball over sporty fairways, and those who make profitable resort business are all golfers. Golf, high-class golf facilities, are essential to the kind of development of Door county that will really pay. That is the chief thing it is lame in. A real, well planned course in the vicinity of Ephraim and Fish Creek, accompanied by somewhat better accommodations, would work unbelievable transformation in a very short time. No better investment could be made than to put some $25,000 to $50,000 in a modern golf course. What Door county should strive for is the tourist business that pays the most money, and golf and the other improvements we have suggested would do it. These provided, its virtues would do the rest—better than the best printed advertising.

THE LIPPERT CASE

The district attorney of Marathon county, Lippert by name, has just been found guilty by a jury of taking bribe money to protect criminals. The evidence against him was quite strong, he was literally caught with the goods,—yet he raised the old cry "I've been framed," the defense advanced by perhaps ninety per cent of the inmates of our state prisons. Odd how so many teams of framers are traveling the country intent on convicting innocent people of grave crimes.

Every time a public official is shown to have been recreant to his trust, to have sold his honor for money, while a harm is done the government yet a lesson is to be learned if the different angles of the case are carefully scrutinized. That lesson is that no party has all the saints nor all the sinners. Lippert was elected as a Socialist and was a leader in the councils of that party in the state. He paraded himself as the "Champion of Labor" and the "Fighter for the downtrodden farmer." That got him votes. It was good stuff. Perhaps his opponent refused to stultify himself by competing with that sort of argument. Labor and the farmer elected Lippert and he sold them out.

It is not necessary to lament the falsity of our times,—for most men in public life are above the depravity of taking bribes,—but it is time to know and not only to know but to remember, that many a servant of the devil wears the livery of heaven, and the most likely is he who beats the drum of class strife to drown out the logic of the truth. Those who directly pose as "champions of the people" are in one degree or another, mostly fakery. In their own hearts they know they are fakery. They intentionally select catch words and catch arguments from which they expect to coin votes. By their wits they live off the public. The pity is that so many honest people believe this sort of stuff and vote to advance the cause and the fortunes of these public parasites.

Yet we are constantly improving. We are daily moving onto higher and clearer ground. Voters are learning by experience that behind the pleasant purr is the claw and that the true and faithful public servant is he who speaks his honest opinion fearlessly and depends upon reason and sense and not prejudice for his success.

THE SUB FROM HELDER

The Netherlands are engaging in one of the most interesting of all today's scientific ventures in the voyage of the earthquake submarine, the K-XIII, which just arrived on the Pacific coast from Helder, Holland.

Parodying the advice about turning swords into plowshares, Holland has turned one of its most dangerous undersea fighters into a strange new laboratory. Its hull is the storage and operating room for "wonderful and delicate instruments, designed for the wholly constructive purpose of studying the floors of the world's seas with a view to casting light on the cause of earthquakes."

Sometime, given sufficient tireless study of the ocean bed and deep sea currents, it may be possible for this Dutch expedition to tell the great cities of the world, if not how to avoid earthquakes, at least when they are liable to come and when to run from them. This painstaking service to science—involving a minute examination of the ocean floor over most of the earthquake areas of the world—is one in which the Netherlands government is ingratiating itself with all humanity.

WHO'S TO BLAME FOR MEASLES?

The grand co-ordinated study of the common cold, wherever that may be, by numerous official and quasi-official health organizations has been under way for about a year now, and they have made one epochal discovery, to wit, how to get occasional newspaper space which the stuff would otherwise scarcely merit. Watch for occasional rebashes of the old hokum bunkum about alleged "colds." I don't know whether the Chicago health department is co-operating in the big hunt for evidence that "colds" happen, but the Chicago health commissioner has just issued a general alarm urging people to lay in plenty of coal now, as insufficient heat is an important cause for "em." From this I venture to predict that the measles and 19 other diseases which get off to a brisk start under the guise of "common cold" will be about as prevalent as ever this season.

Measles, by the way, is one of the common respiratory infections which prove increasingly fatal under the present passive policy of "control" of communicable diseases. The death rate from this disease has been higher this year than ever before in the 15 years the Metropolitan Life Insurance company has kept records, and they deal with 17,000,000 insured persons. That such a respiratory infection should increase, while diphtheria as steadily decreases, is a grave reflection. It is true, upon the public health administration today. Are not the public health authorities accountable for the spread of measles when they insist that the "common cold" is a disease entity which is not necessarily infectious? Measles begins with the symptoms of a "feverish cold." Of course any such illness should be isolated, be it ever so common. But with our public health authorities stoutly maintaining that some alleged "colds" are not infectious at all, is it not natural that people should seize upon this official sanction and dodge that little duty to the community? I believe that any public health authority who teaches that there is such a disease entity as a "common cold" not of infectious origin yet refuses to define it so that intelligent beings may know what he means, ought to be impeached for malfeasance.

The virus or germ of measles is in the nose and throat secretions and the infection is conveyed in the droplets of secretion given off in the spray from nose or mouth when the individual talks, laughs, sneezes or coughs. The infection is not conveyed through the skin or from contact with the rash. Nor is it conveyed through the air or by the expired breath of the patient. The range of the spread is over five feet in diameter, but the patient increases to ten or twelve feet when the patient coughs or sneezes with face uncovered. Beyond 12 feet one simply can't catch measles. There is no good evidence that measles may be carried by a third person not himself coming down with the disease. But there is plenty of evidence that the disease is most communicable in the stage of invasion, before the rash appears. It is in this stage, when the victim seems to have just a "common cold," that isolation is so necessary and, thanks to the bad teaching of our public health guardians, so seldom employed.

In spite of the public health movement to invent and sanction a good alibi for this unnecessary spreading of disease, there is manifest in many quarters a growing tendency to look upon and deal with all alleged "colds" as infectious. Here and there industrial plants, schools, business establishments are excluding all alleged "colds" for the safety of the majority. This sensible practice, enforced in school, would nip in the bud many a measles epidemic.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What is wrong with the blood when one breaks out in red spots on different parts of the body which itch terribly and are called hives? (Mrs. S. H. G.)

Answer.—It may be the hives, at that. Nothing wrong with the blood in hives. Generally some parietal protein poisoning—some protein material has gained entrance to the system through other than the normal digestive route. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for advice about hives.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Oct. 8, 1901

A son was born the previous Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dohr.

Marriage licenses were issued the previous day to George Williams, Bear Creek and Mary Bell of Deer Creek; John Lewis Shipley and Miss Emily May of the town of this city.

The marriage of Arnold Ehrenboom, well known merchant of this city, and Miss Katherine Morarity of Welcome took place that morning at Welcome. The couple was to live in Appleton following a short wedding trip to Chicago.

At the annual meeting of the B'nai Zion Ladies society the previous Sunday new officers were elected. They were: President, Mrs. Joseph Spitz; vice president, Mrs. V. J. Marshall; secretary, Mrs. E. Gerechert; treasurer, Mrs. D. F. Hammett; trustees, Mrs. Fred Hammett and Mrs. Joseph Ullman; entertainment committee, Mrs. Julius Kahn, Mrs. S. G. Marshall and Mrs. M. Bender.

While at work at the Atlas Paper mills the previous afternoon, Thomas Murphy, a resident of the Third ward, received a severe scalp wound as a result of being struck by a portion of one of the machines.

Manager Alfred Faville and Captain Frank Schneller of the Lawrence football team were in Oneida the previous afternoon, making negotiations with the manager of the Indian football team for a game to be played on the home grounds the following Saturday.

TEN YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Oct. 3, 1916

Postal receipts for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1916, had increased over 500 per cent over the receipts of the same quarter in 1901, according to an announcement made at the postoffice that morning. Receipts for the last quarter totaled $15,544.20 as compared with $3,528.65 for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1901. The receipts showed an increase of $12,694.45 over the same period in 1915 when the receipts were $13,284.75.

Herman G. Schuler, 725 Union-st., formerly a member of the board of education, the previous day was appointed by the school board as a member of the Industrial school board to succeed W. A. Fannon, who resigned some weeks previous.

At the meeting of the side rank of the Catholic Order of Foresters the previous night, Wenzel Hasman was elected grand high ruler of the order. Other officers elected were: Edward Frank, grand vice ruler; William X-m-e-c-h-e-k, treasurer; John Morgan, grand high prophet; Edward Reiter, recording and financial secretary and Edward Vaughn, captain of the degree team and Oscar Massonette grand high guide.

Miss Ruby Fravel, Oneida-st., entertained at a dinner the previous Saturday evening at her home. Covers were laid for Henrietta Helmrath, Clara Krenkel, Evelyn Schultz, Barbara Soranzo, Vera Vorwies, Margie and Katherine Plutz, Albert Leonhardt, Kenneth Wilson, John Helmrath, Edward Zuehlke, Victor Verwey, Karl Bower and Leland Feavel.

HASKIN WRITES TODAY

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA

Washington, D. C. — Every two years the world is informed as to just who are the most notable citizens of the United States. This is done through the publication of "Who's Who in America," which undertakes to list the best known men and women of the country in all lines of useful and reputable achievement, and to furnish brief biographical sketches of them all.

The latest biennial edition of this ready reference work, which is so invaluable to newspapers, information services, and other agencies that frequently must have available the essential information concerning the lives of the public, has just made its appearance. It is the fourteenth volume of the series, and is dated as of 1926-27.

It contains the names and life sketches of 26,915 persons, 1558 more than were enumerated in the 1924-25 edition. However, 2491 people get into this volume who have never been mentioned in previous editions, 1933 who were included in the last issue having been dropped — by reason of death, or retirement from public office and from conspicuous private and public enterprises.

On the basis of an estimated population of 114,000,000 for the United States in 1926 it will be found that one person out of every 4240 breaks into "Who's Who." And breaking in, it is to be emphasized, is accomplished by doing something worth while. No one can pay money to get his name and sketch included in the volume, and the mere accumulation of wealth is not regarded as an achievement of sufficient importance or merit to call for mention in this national blue book. Nor does family standing or social position get anyone in.

In fact, about the surest way not to get mentioned in "Who's Who" is to try the pay-as-you-enter method, or to write to the editor and ask to be mentioned, or to have a press agent or social secretary attempt to get you in. One wants until one is invited by the editor, to furnish biographical material and then if one is wise, he meekly answers definitely and concisely the questions that are asked of him. It is impossible to get by with fulsome biographies such as Senators and Representatives often insert in the Congressional Directory.

STANDARDS OF SELECTION
Those who are eligible for admission into the comparatively small group of national notables are divided into two classes. The first includes those who are selected on account of special prominence in creditable lines of interest, inquiry, or discussion in this country. The second class is made up of those who are arbitrarily included on account of official position—civil, military, naval, religious or educational.

The first of these two classes, the editor explains, comprises persons who have accomplished some conspicuous achievement—something out of the ordinary, so to speak—something which distinguishes them from the vast majority who are content with the status quo. The second class is confined to Americans, or those who are so prominently identified with American affairs as to be subjects of inquiry or wide discussion in the United States. Thus a few foreign actors, singers, lecturers and others are included. Names appear of those who are broadly prominent in some special field but who may be little known in their own communities. The national character is frequently he whose work is better known than himself, and it is pertinent personal information concerning such an individual that "Who's Who" aims to gather and disseminate.

The arbitrarily included class embraces, without regard to notability or prominence in any other respect, all members of Congress; members of the Cabinet; United States judges; Governors of States, Territories, and Islands; possessors of the United States judges of state and territorial supreme courts; all American ambassadors and ministers plenipotentiary, and all ambassadors and ministers accredited to this country; all living American authors of books possessing more than ephemeral value; officers of the Army above the rank of colonel and of the Navy above the rank of captain; heads of the larger universities and colleges; heads of the leading societies devoted to philanthropic, educational and scientific aims; members of the National Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Design, the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and the National Institute of Arts and Letters; bishops and chief ecclesiastics of all the larger religious denominations; and others who are in like manner chosen because of their official relations and affiliations.

WHOLE NUMBER IS SMALL
That the selection of those names should be included in a list of this kind has been carefully and critically made is attested by the fact that in 27 years less than 50,000 Americans have been deemed worthy of mention.

Publication of "Who's Who" was begun in 1899. The first volume included 8602 biographical sketches. The last one, as has been said, runs to a total of 26,915. During this period, the names of 23,119 appearing in the earlier editions have been dropped, thus the grand total to date of those who have been listed is 49,034.

Of those whose names have been dropped, 12,068 have died. About 45 per cent of the omissions, or 10,051, have been due to retirement from public office or from some other position of prominence.

"It is doubtless true," says the editor, "that the fitness of every name included will not be apparent to every user of the book. The artist will expect the volume to be especially complete in the inclusion of fellow artists; the possessor of literary tastes will be disappointed if some author's name be missing; the scientist will miss names belonging to his own particular department of research."

"It is a fact, however, that while the standard of admission has from the first been high, there has been an unremitting effort to satisfy the reasonable expectations of those of all professions and vocations in regard to the names included. If errors have been made they have been in the main on the side of liberality, with a view to making the book useful in the highest degree."

The data included in each sketch cover birthplace, age, parentage, education, college or university degrees, occupation, position, achievements, politics, societies, clubs, marriages, etc.—the chief features of each career, without eulogy or criticism. The newest volume does one thing that has not been heretofore accomplished: it gives the names of the children of all the notables.

Of the total number of persons listed in the new volume 9.53 per cent are natives of the United States, while 9.53 per cent are of foreign birth, 9 were born at sea, and 228 failed to report as to place of birth. All but 521 have their permanent homes in the United States. The residents of foreign countries are made up chiefly of Government officials, business men, and missionaries temporarily abroad.

The 1926-27 "Who's Who," by the way, is both a larger and a smaller volume than its predecessors. Its pages are wider and taller, but there are fewer of them.

Q. Will Japan be represented at the Sesqui Centennial Exposition? S. L. T.

A. The entire exhibit will be on a larger scale than any ever before attempted by Japan.

Q. Does thunder always follow lightning? F. H.

A. The Weather Bureau says that lightning, particularly "heat" lightning, may occur so far away from the observer that the thunder is not audible; on the other hand, the lightning flash may be so close to the observer that, so far as he can tell, the lightning and the thunder occur simultaneously. If the lightning is at any distance from the observer, however, then, if thunder is heard at all, it always occurs after the flash is seen, the interval of time between the two being greater the greater the distance at which the flash took place. This is because the speed of light is so great (186,330 miles per second) that the flash is seen practically at the same instant it occurs, whereas the speed of sound is not very great (around 1100 feet per second).

Q. How fast does the blood circulate? L. M.

A. It is said that all the blood in the body goes in and out of the heart once every minute.

Q. Why was it difficult to carry on a conversation in old Latin? E. H.

A. The difficulty found in speaking Latin was the same as that of old English. Sentences in Latin and old English were very long, sometimes as long as a long paragraph. Men spoke in sentences of 400 and 500 words. While one spoke all others had to sit by and listen until he had finished. Today, it has been decided that a sentence should not last longer than 25 seconds or contain more than 15 or 16 words.

Q. Was it on her first voyage that the Mauretania broke the speed record? H. L. S.

A. The Mauretania on her maiden voyage to this country sailed from Liverpool on November 16th, 1907 and from Queenstown the following day. She arrived in New York on November 22nd. This is not the voyage when she broke the world's record, same was accomplished on September 10th to 16th in 1910.

Q. Where is Blarney Castle? A. G.

A. Blarney Castle is in County Ireland, five miles northwest of the town of Cork. Twenty feet from the summit of the Castle is the Blarney stone, to kiss which renders a person, according to tradition, as persuasive as a serpent.

Q. If a man or his wife dies, can the survivor draw upon funds in a joint bank account? S. M. L.

A. A joint bank account unless especially limited at the time of making the deposit gives to either party the right to withdraw any or all of the funds, and in the case of the death of one person the other would be entitled to withdraw the funds.

Q. What is the population of Mexico? T. G. M.

A. The official census of 1921 showed the population of Mexico to be 14,234,799, of which between 85 and 90 per cent is Indian and mestizo (mixed blood).

NEED ENTERTAINMENT

Editor of Post-Crescent—Within a radius of a few miles from Appleton, on the banks of the Fox River, is situated the Riverview Sanatorium, in which there are 34 patients, making a gallant fight for life and health. Some of these patients have been inmates of this institution for years and the daily routine of "San" life is rather monotonous and exceedingly trying, at times.

A little diversion, occasionally, is very essential in keeping them in a contented and happy state of mind and will help curtail the long, weary hours of the day, during the period of convalescing.

There are a number of your readers talented in various ways residing in Appleton or vicinity. Why not give these sick folks an hour or two of your time, by putting on "Frolics" or a "Musical" of some sort, render them a "shut in" and their amusements are few, far between and their sacrifices are many. I'm sure you will feel well repaid for your efforts, when you hear the applause and see the animated faces of your audience.

A Patient.

New York—Signs of approaching winter in Manhattan:

Announcement in the newspapers of the Sunday night "concerts." . . . Which are somewhat carelessly disguised evasions of the metropolitan "blue law." . . . These "concert" performances on the Sabbath are not tolerated, though movies may go merrily along. . . . Headlines of vaudeville and the stage are secured and appear in "concerts," which are allowed. . . . Showing that anything can be bootlegged, including amusement.

The oyster peddlers on the east side. . . . Oysters at one cent each. . . . All you can eat and plenty of diners. . . . The increasing number of sweet potato vendors. . . . Theatrical rehearsals in almost any vacant hall and theater building. . . . Backyard garden cafes begin to pack up and move indoors. . . . Particularly in Greenwich Village. . . . City in America likes to eat outdoors more than Manhattan. . . . And just now the very "arty" paintings that adorn the back fences begin to look like the scenery of a successful theatrical road show. . . . Those pathetic window boxes with their scraggly geraniums begin to give up. . . . Ah, me, winter is not far off.

One of the sprightly night clubs hired as an entertainer a certain Hindu mental telepathist. He goes table to table, answering the questions of guests and reading their minds. . . . The other night he halted at the table of three youths who plainly showed the ill effects of too much gin. . . . "Whadda we thinkin' of—tell me 'at?' demanded the soberest of the trio.

"Without hesitation the 'mystic' replied: 'You are wondering whether you'll be able to pay your check or get thrown out?'"

"My Gawd, how'd he know?" pondered the perplexed collegian as he sat upon the sidewalk fifteen minutes later after the combined fortunes of the three had been found insufficient to meet the bill.

The "mystic" was hailed upon another evening by two strangers who had ordered one of those stale night club sandwiches which nobody is expected to eat but which, nevertheless, add $2.40 to the check.

"You're so wise," began the tourist, pointing to the sandwich. "May be you can tell me what the devil this is?"

"My friend," came the prompt answer. "I claim merely to be able to fathom the human mind. I lay no claim to supernatural powers."

EXPERT EXPLAINS PLAN FOR RELIEF OF AGRICULTURE

TARIFF EXEMPTION IS IDEA ADVANCED BY DR. C. L. STEWART

Would Bring Prices to Fairly Fixed Standards of Europe, Claim

Must be expected to be said about the farm relief plan of Dr. C. L. Stewart, chief of agricultural economics for the University of Illinois, during the December session of congress.

Commenting upon his plan, Dr. Stewart says:

"Prices of farm products, now below Liverpool figures by fairly fixed margins, can be brought up closer to these European prices by the use of export debentures.

"While designed primarily to encourage agriculture as a matter of national safety, export debentures have been supported by the argument of justice to farmers and by the argument that a large part of the town and city population benefits from farm prosperity.

"But how would debentures work? A cotton exporter explained it like this:

"When the Liverpool price is 20 cents a pound, we exporters can pay 17 cents a pound, and American spinners must bid that much to take it away from us.

"If we were to receive for each pound a certificate which the federal government would receive in payment of duties on goods being brought into this country, we could and would raise our bids up toward 20 cents.

SAVE ON TARIFF

"Of course, we would not import products ourselves, but we would sell the certificates at very close to par, and those buying them would have as high tariff to pay as if they paid the duties all in cash.

"Two other things need be noted: In the first place, we exporters must bid up to the full extent of our power, or lose business. We could not prevent two cents received as a debenture from going on back to the producer any more than one could prevent two cents more in the Liverpool price from going on back to the farm.

"In the second place, this higher price applies not only to the part of the crop actually exported, but to all the rest of the crop, too."

"Wheat and flour, corn and the meat products of corn, tobacco and tobacco manufactures, rice and other products can be debentured just like cotton. Of course, the import duties would be paid in debentures rather than cash in a third of the cases, let us say. This would put our tariff revenues back to something less than $400 million dollars a year, the amount the tariff used to produce.

LITTLE LOSS IN RETURN

"But the tariff now produces less than $50 million each year, whereas from a quarter to a half million more would be received if less of the high protective element were present. This protection now helps industrial production more directly than agricultural production.

"Export debentures can do much for American agriculture. They can raise the prices of products on which import duties now stand ready to be made effective by some such device. They can also help producers of cotton, a product so largely exported that an import duty has never been considered useful, a product, however, affecting several million farmers.

"Debitures, however, are merely tariff exemptions so directed as to help agriculture, and indirectly to help those whose interests are improved when farmers receive a more proportionate share of the national income."

MARKET WAS QUIET DURING PAST WEEK

Butter Buyers Operated Mostly on Hand to Mouth Basis, Reports Show

Madison—(P)—Trading on the butter and cheese markets was quiet last week, the state department of markets reported Saturday. Butter buyers operated mostly on a hand to mouth basis. Supplies, while not burdensome, were ample to meet the demand. Prices are about 2 cents lower than a year ago.

Cheese buying was spotted, buyers taking cheese only for immediate needs. Stocks, however, are not burdensome. Fresh cheese is reported in every light supply. Prices are one cent lower than a year ago.

General trading in eggs was only fair and business dull. Warehouse movement is running behind that of last year. Spot prices are about 2 cents higher than last year, but not as high as the futures. Prices on these classes declined from 50 to 75c. It is reported that the shipping demand for the last ten days appears to have been the smallest for several years, for a full period. Prices are about the same as last year at this time.

Reduced cattle supplies have reduced the holdover from the previous week. Native fat steers and yearlings were especially scarce. As a result prices show some strength and yearlings are even stronger to 25c higher as compared with the previous week.

The week was marked by liberal liquidation of lambs from the north plains and inter-mountain ranges. Prices are from 25 to 35c lower than last week and about $2.00 lower than a year ago at this time.

FARMERS STARTING ON FALL REPAIRING

Residents of Grand Chute Painting and Renovating Buildings

Farmers in the town of Grand Chute have started the annual fall painting, repairing and rejuvenating campaigns according to rural mail carriers at the Appleton postoffice.

Many farmers are painting their barns and outbuildings, some are improving their homes, several are building new silos and a few are improving their barns.

Ted Moss, route 2, Greenville, is wrecking an old silo and will erect a new one soon. He has also remodeled the basement of his barn, having put in a new concrete floor and mangers.

John Champagne, town of Grand Chute, is building a new wooden silo. It will be completed for use this fall.

F. C. Miller, town of Grand Chute, is painting his barns and outbuildings and constructing an addition to his home.

Robert McGinnis, town of Grand Chute, is painting his barns and outbuildings.

Charles Peterson, town of Grand Chute, is painting his barns and outbuildings. He will complete the work this week.

Harry Kottz, town of Grand Chute, will start to paint his barns and outbuildings next week.

Paul Rohloff, town of Grand Chute, recently completed construction of a new barn at an approximate cost of $4,000. It is being painted a cream color. He will keep a herd of Guernsey cows.

CAPITAL STOCK FOR MOST FARM TRADE BODIES IN NATION

80 Per Cent of Farmers' Buy- ing and Selling Associa- tions Issue Stock

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS

Washington, D. C.—Eighty per cent of the farmers' buying and selling associations in Wisconsin have capital stock and 69 per cent of the farmers' buying and selling associations in the United States have capital stock.

These facts were announced by the department of agriculture after analyzing more than 10,000 reports respecting capital stock. The study was made by the division of cooperative marketing, which found that 63 per cent of the total cooperative business is transacted by associations organized with capital stock.

Eighty-five per cent of the associations in the New England states are organized with capital stock. The study was made by the division of cooperative marketing, which found that 63 per cent of the total cooperative business is transacted by associations organized with capital stock.

The percentages of capital stock in the associations are as follows: Kansas, 92 per cent; Nebraska, 91 per cent; Ohio, 82 per cent; Wisconsin, 80 per cent; Minnesota, 74 per cent; Michigan, 53 per cent; California, 50 per cent; and New York, 31 per cent.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN

In the case of the farmers' elevators 88 per cent are organized with capital stock. Eighty-five per cent of the associations marketing dairy products have capital stock; 59 per cent of the associations marketing fruits and vegetables are capital stock enterprises, as are also 35 per cent of the associations marketing eggs and poultry, 15 per cent of those marketing livestock, and 9.5 per cent of those marketing wool.

The 432 Illinois associations and the 207 Ohio associations handling grain, which reported with reference to capital stock, are all organized with capital stock. The percentages of capital stock grain marketing associations in North Dakota, Minnesota, South Dakota, Indiana and Nebraska are just under 100.

VARIED PERCENTAGES

The percentages for the fruit and vegetable associations varied from 8 per cent in Missouri to 91 per cent in Minnesota.

Less than 2 per cent of the livestock shipping associations in Illinois have capital stock, while 31 per cent of those in Michigan are organized with capital stock.

More than 6,500 of the associations reporting regarding form of organization also reported regarding the amount of business transacted in 1925.

URGE UNIFORM PLAN TO SELL LIVESTOCK FOR U. S. SHIPPERS

Washington—Marketing stock is one of the most important features of co-operative livestock shipping, especially if the stock is to be sold according to ownership.

The United States Department of Agriculture believes it advisable to establish a uniform system of marketing livestock for use by all associations in the country. Such a plan would reduce errors in regard to ownership to a minimum.

A system of marketing which is suitable to the needs of all associations has been suggested.

SPIEGELBERG COW HIGH IN SEPTEMBER

Dobberstein Animal, in 25- day Test, Has Second Av- erage for Month

A grade Guernsey, producing 50 pounds of butterfat and 1,142 pounds of milk, owned by Arnold Spiegelberg, had the highest record among ten animals in the Ellington-Outagamie Cow Testing association during September.

John Dobberstein's grade Holstein produced an average of 54 pounds of butterfat and 1,460 pounds of milk during a 25-day test, and was second high in the association for the month.

Mr. Spiegelberg's herd of 10 cows had the highest average, 36.9 pounds of butterfat and 722 pounds of milk. Thirteen grade Holsteins, owned by R. Griswold, comprised the second highest herd, having an average of 31.9 pounds of butterfat and 927 pounds of milk. Following is the record of animals:

Owner of Cow	Pounds Milk	Per Cent of Fat	Pounds Butterfat
Ed. Lohrenz & Sons	1,267	3.8	48.1
Ed. Lohrenz & Sons	784	5.3	41.6
E. M. Breitrick	888	4.6	40.8
E. M. Breitrick	1,073	4.1	44.0
E. M. Breitrick	1,168	4.0	46.7
John Dobberstein	1,460	3.7	54.0
R. Griswold	1,308	3.1	40.5
Henry Dobberstein	1,479	3.4	50.3
Arnold Spiegelberg	1,142	4.9	56.0
Arnold Spiegelberg	1,091	4.6	50.2

The date indicated that 63 per cent of the total business was handled by associations with capital stock.

"Save Your Seed Corn, It Will Be High," is Warning

Seed corn will be high next spring and it will pay Wisconsin farmers who have ripe seed corn to take the best of care of it. That is the opinion of R. A. Moore, veteran agronomist of the Wisconsin college of agriculture.

Moore advises that much of the Wisconsin corn was sufficiently mature to make excellent seed corn, despite the recent heavy frost, if picked before deterioration began. As soon as the leaves have been hit by frost, growth stops and the decay of both stalk and ear start, Moore explains.

"When high grade seed corn is desired, one should get in to the field as soon as possible after the first frost and pick the mature ears," says Moore. "Most of the Golden Glow, Wisconsin No. 7, is sufficiently mature to make good seed.

"Some of the other northern states will be harder hit than Wisconsin and there will be a big demand for seed corn next spring. Many Wisconsin farmers had picked their seed corn before the frost. One Richland county farmer had picked 1200 bushels.

"Seed corn should not be left in the field or hung on the side of the barn or windmill to freeze. Last year the corn had matured well and was in the shock before the first frost, but heavy rains set in, early freezes followed and the germination of the corn was greatly injured.

"Corn should be taken into the drying room and dried by the side of the barn or windmill to freeze. Last year the corn had matured well and was in the shock before the first frost, but heavy rains set in, early freezes followed and the germination of the corn was greatly injured.

"Thousands of bushels of fire dried seed corn will be needed next spring and good prices are likely to prevail. Other northern states will be calling on Wisconsin for thousands of bushels of good seed corn, and the Wisconsin experiment association will try to help its members and other farmers of Wisconsin to obtain good prices for properly picked and cured seed.

There are only four teams in the state that have been able to accomplish this feat, according to O. A. Rowland, engineer in charge of the truck and testing machine attached, who is from the college of agriculture will be invited to the reunion.

TOBACCO CROP SHORT OF LAST YEAR'S YIELD

Wisconsin's tobacco crop 'how in the sheds is estimated at 35,000,000 pounds as compared to 44 million pounds harvested last year in the crop report issued to day by the Wisconsin department of agricultural statistics.

A bountiful apple crop is reported in the western part of the state but a lighter one in the eastern half. Wisconsin's potato crop is estimated at 23,000,000 bushels this year as compared to the short crop of 24,000,000 bushels last year. The U. C. crop is estimated at 352 million bushels which is about eight per cent greater than the 1925 crop.

When you have any trouble with your stomach such as gas, heaviness and distention, why fool with things which at best can only give relief.

Why not get a medicine that will build up your upset, disordered stomach and make it so strong and vigorous that it will do its work without any help.

Such a medicine is Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a delightful elixer that is sold by Vogt's Drug Store and all live druggists with the distinct understanding that if it doesn't greatly help you your money will be gladly returned.

It has helped thousands—it will no doubt help you.

Amazing Lumber

Not cut from trees
saves 1/3 your fuel money

Yet it adds little or nothing to building costs. Celotex will also keep your home cooler in Summer warmer in Winter.

Careful tests by heating engineers show that from 25% to 35% of furnace heat is needlessly wasted through solid walls and roofs.

That is because wood lumber, masonry and other usual wall and roof materials, when used alone, offer too little resistance to the passage of heat and cold.

This great waste of fuel can now be stopped! An amazing heat-stopping lumber is available for every home, new or old.

This amazing lumber is Celotex. It is not cut from trees, but manufactured in broad, strong boards from the tough fibres of cane. It is enduring . . . scientifically sterilized and waterproofed. Celotex is stronger in walls than wood lumber and many times better as insulation. Wind and moisture can not penetrate it. It quiets noise.

COSTS LITTLE or nothing to use. Unlike ordinary insulation, Celotex is not an extra item in building. Wherever used, it replaces other materials, adding insulation at little or no extra cost.

With the walls and ceilings or roof of your house covered with Celotex a smaller, less expensive heating plant and smaller radiators will keep you comfortable. And year after year, Celotex will save from 25% to 35% of your fuel bill!

NEW COMFORT for old houses. In houses already built, a big measure of this comfort and economy is being secured by lining attics and basements with Celotex.

Let us tell you more about Celotex before you build or buy.

CELOTEX

INSULATING LUMBER

How Celotex is used in both old and new houses

AS SHEATHING Celotex supplies the insulation needed back of brick, wood or stucco exteriors.

UNDER PLASTER On inside walls and ceilings, plaster is applied directly to the surface of Celotex.

IN THE ROOF Celotex applied over or under rafters gives protection where it is most needed.

BEAUTY HINTS

WOOL FROCKS FOR FALL AND WINTER HAVE NEW DISTINCTION
CHECKS, LARGE AND SMALL, BROWNS AND REDS ARE SEEN AGAIN

BY HENRI BENDEL
NEW YORK—With a tinge in the air, the first faintly yellow leaves and the assurance that autumn is about to begin her yearly program, comes the desire for the wool frock.

After a season of silks and flimsy materials, there is something very gratifying and substantial about the wool frock or frock.

Elegant wools have a richness that always gives them distinction, but particularly this year when all wool fabrics have been softened and made more supple, and colors have attained a subtlety never before achieved.

The more feminine styles, the more graceful cuts, and more easy swing to skirts and coats, add a new charm to the wool outfit—if indeed, any such aid is necessary.

TWEED FOR SPORTS
Large and small checks, vivid in color and bold in pattern, or broken in design and shadowed in color are to be seen, and embroidered and shaded wools in all the new of all colors are in evidence.

For sport wear, tweed and homespun materials reign supreme. One of the smartest developments in tweed may be seen in the three piece model photographed which includes a long coat, luxuriously collared with wolverine fur, a blouse and tiered skirt.

The color is particularly appropriate, being the soft warm brown of autumn leaves, in plain color for the skirt and blouse, and in fine brown and black checks for the skirt. The low narrow belt of brown leather, casually worn, and the buttons of the material are both style features worthy of consideration.

While essentially an outfit for the country, and for sport wear, this outfit would not be at all out of the picture on Fifth avenue and would do hard service all winter.

The plaid wool jacket costume is from Chantal, the Parisienne couturier who has a genius for sport attire. Of exceptionally soft and pliable tweed, the colors are equally soft and satisfying—bois de rose on a delicate tan background. A blouse of bois de rose crepe de chine is an accessory to complete the costume idea.

The practical nature of the coat is an important feature, it being reversible. The goat fur side may be worn to the front instead of the tweed, whenever the wearer desires. On the right side of the coat, hidden, alas, from view, is a tier of three small pockets, with buttons of antique silver.

MORE SOPHISTICATED
Less obviously designed for sport, and equally appropriate for town or country is the third model of golden brown kasha cloth embroidered in gold thread and trimmed with brown buttons.

Rich material, perfect lines, and a beautiful color combination make any attempt at trimming quite unnecessary and undesirable, but the wide brown suede belt, worn just below the natural waistline, accentuating the slim figure of the wearer is a forcible evidence of feminine vanity.

While these three costumes are simple in line and detail, they have that indefinable something about them that suggests the thoroughbred and the patrician. And to the knowing eye, they are far more sophisticated and more subtle than they seem.

Her Own Way
A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

"Yes, Joan, it's Judy," I answered. "I want you to come down town immediately."

"You want me to come to the store, Judy? Have you got the money?"

"No."

"What do you mean? Can't you get it?"

There was a sudden change in the voice. As I had expected, Joan last night had put all her troubles on my shoulders. She was so used to being protected and helped that by merely telling me her troubles she had become sure that I would take care of her.

Now, however, her voice was full of anguish and I hastened, as I thought, to relieve her mind as soon as possible by telling her that Barry Cornwall was dead.

Before I could get any further I heard a queer sound as though the receiver was dropped and I was cut off.

"Central, central," I fairly shouted, "I have been cut off."

"Did the other party call you, or did you call them?" I finally said central in that quick monotone of the telephone operator.

Without waiting to be instructed, I hung up and called Joan's number again. For I knew that she would probably call the store, not knowing I was in a public booth.

After a long delay the maid again answered me.

"I was cut off. I was cut off," I said.

"I hardly think so," she answered. "You see, Miss Meredith fainted."

"Is she all right now? Has she come to?"

"Yes, miss, but I don't think she can get to the phone."

"Mr. Judy, don't go away!" This time it was Joan's voice instead of the maid. Evidently she had recovered from the fainting spell.

"Is it true that Barry is dead?" She asked in a trembling voice.

"Yes, and you will enough to come down to the Congress immediately. You and I must go and see his wife."

"Not Lela! I couldn't see Lela now!"

"Yes, you even and you will," I said. "But poor girl is much worse off than you."

"After a slight hesitation Joan said, 'I'll be there just as soon as I can' get into a street dress. Can you get away from the store?"

"Dad's awfully fussy about letting people out during hours, you know. Some one would be sure to see us if we met outside of the store, and he would wonder how I came to know you and probably discharge you."

"Never mind me, Joan. Although your father does not yet know, I have discharged myself. I have left his employ."

"Good. Then you can come and live with me. I need a companion."

"That remains to be seen, Joan, dear."

As I left the booth I had a feeling that someone was hovering around, and sure enough when I reached the sidewalk in front of the store I met Jerry.

As I caught a view of his sincere illuminating smile I drew a long breath. I knew that all men were not wrong. Here was one that was honest and true.

"Jerry, will you forgive me?" he said, clasping both my hands in his, for instinctively when I first saw him I held them out to him. "I know that I was a brute last night. I should have known that whatever you did, you were doing what was right. Judy I love you so much that the very thought of you dining with another man like Robinson makes me see red."

Jerry said this almost in a breath as he stood on the public street holding my hands.

I looked up into his face, and a warm contented feeling came over me as I looked at him with admiration. "This outstanding person is my man," I said to myself. "He loves me. He wants to marry me."

I think, if I had not promised to meet Joan, I would have gone with Jerry Hathaway to luncheon. But such was my feeling at the time that I knew I would have told him that I would marry him as soon as he wished me to. Sometimes I have wondered what would have happened if I did.

As it was, I caught a sight of Mr. Robinson coming down the street, and I was so afraid that he would see me with Jerry that I rushed back into the drug store where I had been telephoning and out on a side street.

I never said good-bye to Jerry at all. In fact, all the way to the Congress in the taxi, which I fortunately found standing vacant at the door, I kept asking myself if I had done the right thing.

I was sure Jerry saw Mr. Robinson. He would put two and two together and jump at the right conclusion, which was that I was trying to avoid him.

I knew that, notwithstanding the fact that Jerry said he would trust me, there was still a little doubt lingering in his mind. For some reason he was jealous of Mr. Robinson.

I told myself that I would never be jealous of anyone, as it was a sure sign of inferiority complex.

Smilingly, I went into the Congress Hotel lobby. I saw Joan immediately and I forgot everything but her and the wife of Barry Cornwall.

Poor Joan's face was so white and drawn that I pitied her from the bottom of my heart, but before I had time to tell her she came forward with tears rolling down her cheeks.

"Judy, is it true?"

"Yes, dear, and you should be forever grateful."

"But, Judy," she whispered, "I loved him."

"Surely not after the way he treated you," I said.

"Yes, I did. One cannot tell why one loves or why one does not love. Barry could have made a splendid man if the fates had not been against him. You know he went to France when he was seventeen years old and was gassed at Chateau Thierry. When he came back he couldn't do any hard work and he didn't have much education. There was one thing he could do. He could dance."

What an epitaph with which to seal the memory of a man I never had seen Barry Cornwall, but I knew he must have had something in him or a girl like Joan would never have cared for him at all.

She told me he had all the marks of distinguished ancestry, and if that were so his mother had probably been very proud of him. He had told Joan that his mother had died while he was away at war and he had whispered, "I think her heart was broken when she saw me go."

He went away very gay and brave and served his country to the end; and he came back a poor, maimed thing whose only solace was, "He could dance."

I looked at Joan Meredith, dainty and sweet in a frock whose simplicity spelled money. Truly I had learned a lot since I had come to this city; then, although I perhaps knew more about good taste in dress than most girls who live in small towns, even I had to learn that there was a kind of plainness than which nothing was more expensive.

Elegant simplicity! One of the ambitions that I had acquired was that at sometime I would be able to have a suit like Joan's.

Reassurances—such as the Beaux Arts were good schools to learn the difference between a flashy young woman who dressed to attract attention, and one of the real smart girls who wore her plain little frock with an air that made it stand out like a tall slender girl among a lot of brilliant ones.

I rather smiled at myself for thinking these thoughts while such a tragedy as Joan's was being enacted about me.

Again I understood that my silly brain has always refused to think too long about trouble. Perhaps it was because I was still too young, and everything that I saw or did gave me such a kick.

Now, however, I was brought back by a strangled sob from Joan. In a whirl of remorse, I put my arms about her.

"You must pull yourself together, dear," I said. "We must go immediately and find Lela. Think of a trouble she is in."

"But she didn't love him as much as I, Judy," asserted Joan.

"How do you know, dear?"

"Well, she must have known that Barry was at least flirting with me and she didn't even appear jealous."

"You can never know, Joan, what is in another woman's heart. She knew you must have money to live. She knew you could give it to her. She knew that if Barry could keep on dancing with you until after the baby came, it would be a great thing. Perhaps, my dear, she loved him so much that she trusted him."

JEM SMITH

"Do you think that Lela will want to see us, Judy?" Joan asked.

"I think, my dear, she will be glad to see anyone that can help her just now. But whether she wants to see us or not, you and I must find out if she has that tell-tale page of the register."

At my mention of the hotel register, Joan's tears drenched her eyes afresh.

"Do you know Lela's address?" I asked.

"But I am sure that they have it at The Circle."

"Let us get a taxi, then."

"My car is here, Judy. We can take that."

"No, my dear. We must not take your car. It is very probable that there are a number of reporters hanging around Barry Cornwall's place and it would cause a lot of talk if your expensive car rolled up in front of it."

"I have an idea that we will even have to dismiss the taxi or keep it waiting for us on some side street a block or two from his home and walk over. I expect we will find it is a boarding house or an apartment."

When we arrived at The Circle we encountered many curious glances from those who had already come for an afternoon dance.

Very ostentatiously the man who owned the place came forward.

"Have you heard the news about Barry, Miss Meredith?" he asked in the most obsequious manner.

I answered before Joan could say anything.

"Miss Meredith saw in the morning papers the deplorable accident that happened to Mr. Cornwall. She asked me to come over here with her to get the address of his home."

"Yes, I wanted to see if I could help."

"Miss Meredith wants to know if she can be of any help at this time," I put in before she could say anything.

I knew that if she told this man that we knew that Barry was married he would keep the address from her as long as he could, hoping to get Lela first and with her permission carry out some blackmailing scheme. The moment he spoke my surname was correct, for in his most oily tone he said:

"I don't think I have Barry Cornwall's address here, but if you will come back this evening I believe I can give it to you."

JOAN VISITS LELA

Before Joan could speak the words that were trembling on her lips, I fairly pulled her out of the place and said, "Thank you, we will come again."

"Why do you do that, Judy?" she asked impatiently, pulling herself away from me. "That man probably would have helped us if we had told him that we wanted to find poor Barry's wife."

"Oh, Joan, Joan, what a trusting baby you are. That man's one object in life at the present moment is to keep you from Lela until after he gets to her, and he probably would drive her to suicide if we don't see her first."

We fairly ran to where the taxi was waiting.

Joan looked so muddled in her mind as she followed me that I almost wanted to laugh.

I mixed her up more than ever when she heard me order the taxi driver to go immediately to the Central Station. When we arrived there we found that we were in luck. A very gallant desk sergeant gave us the address we wanted immediately.

Joan looked at me startled.

"But, Judy, she doesn't know any more than I, and I want to learn."

"Neither do I know any more than you, Joan," I answered. "Don't you know it is much more pleasant to teach some one than to be taught?"

I went up toward the bed. Lela opened her eyes languidly.

"Who are you, my dear?" she asked.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Grapes, cereal, thin cream, soft cooked eggs, bran and raisin muffins, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Cream of celery soup, toasted crackers, spinach and egg salad, toasted bran muffins, baked apples with rice pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Broiled lamb chops, baked potatoes, creamed lima beans, stuffed tomato salad, jelly, pears with whipped cream, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

These are simple, nourishing menus for the entire family. No extra dishes need be prepared for small persons, nor must they be denied any particular dish.

The luncheon dessert is quite hearty and more suitable for luncheon than dinner.

BAKED APPLES WITH RICE PUDDING

Five tart apples, ½ cup rice, 2 cups milk, 3 eggs, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup seeded raisins, 4 tablespoons tiny red cinnamon candies, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Wash rice through many waters and cook in slightly salted boiling water for 20 minutes. Let water cook away. Beat 2 whole eggs and 1 yolk until light. Add sugar, milk and vanilla and continue beating. Add to rice with raisins and stir well. Pare apples and remove cores. Arrange in a buttered baking dish and fill cavities with cinnamon candies. Pour rice custard around apples and bake in a moderate oven until apples are tender. Remove from oven and cover with remaining white of egg beaten until stiff and dry, with powdered sugar. Put into a slow oven for eight minutes to puff and brown the meringue. Serve warm or cold with or without whipped cream.

without my having to disclose our names.

To the officer I explained that we wanted to find out where Mrs. Barry Cornwall was, that we were much shocked upon reading the news in the morning papers, for we knew that she must be in straitened circumstances as well as that she was going to have a baby, and wanted to help her all we could.

The officer gave us the address, and we went directly to the place.

We found poor Lela in a daze. She didn't seem to have realized as yet what had happened to her.

Lela Cornwall was hardly more than a child and my heart went out to her right away.

"Poor things," Joan whispered to me. "She and her husband were just like 'babes in the woods.' And now that Barry is gone I don't know what Lela will do."

"I do, my dear. Instead of making me your companion, you will make her."

Joan looked at me startled.

"But, Judy, she doesn't know any more than I, and I want to learn."

Give Supper For Workers In Campaign

Women to work on the financial campaign of the Appleton Womens club were entertained at a supper at the club Monday evening when they were given instructions concerning the drive by Mrs. Stephen C. Rosebush, chairman. Nearly all of the group of 15 members of the committee were present at the meeting. Community singing was led by two students of Lawrence conservatory, Miss Grace Morrison and Miss Lucille Bitters. Reports of the workers will be made at a luncheon at the club at 12:15 Thursday noon, it was said. All of the women were asked to be present at this meeting and were urged to complete their reports by that time. Former members of the club will be asked to renew their memberships during the campaign and Appleton women who have never before joined the organization will be asked to do so this year. Mrs. Rosebush said. Business meeting of the city also will be solicited by the committee to contribute to the support of the work of the club.

Noted Musicians Coming To Sorority Convention

A glee club composed of members of the Madison chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, national musical sorority, will sing two numbers at the vesper service at 4:30 Sunday afternoon, Oct. 10 at First Methodist church. The vesper service will open the national biennial convention of Sigma Alpha Iota which convenes here Oct. 10 to 12. Miss Aagol Borge is director of the glee club.

Six other noted singers and musicians will appear on the program at the service. Mrs. Leon Hinkle, soprano, of Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. Winifred W. Quinlan of Appleton, are to sing and Miss Emily Roberts of Chicago is to play a half hour program. Miss Roberts received a Bachelor's degree of Music at the American Conservatory of Chicago, where she has been engaged as instructor for the last two years. She has also been a member of the faculty of the Illinois College of Music at Chicago for five years and is a member of the Chicago Artists' association, the American Guild of Organists and Sigma Alpha Iota musical sorority. Miss Roberts was organist at the First Congregational church at Lancaster, Wis., the Thomas Memorial Congregational, First United Presbyterian, First Baptist and Wicker Park Lutheran churches at Chicago.

Jeannette Van der Velpen Reanne, lyric soprano, soloist with the Detroit Symphony orchestra and Lucille Vogel-Cole, pianist will also appear on the program. The latter spent seven years in Europe and was a member of Leschetizky's classes at Vienna. She did ensemble work with the string quartet of Franz Wilczek in Berlin and has developed a technical equipment comparable to that of the greatest artists. Elsie Alexander, English pianist, is a new comer to the Bush Conservatory faculty Miss Alexander's successes in concert in London and other English cities and on tour of eastern and western Canada have been many. She is regarded as an authority on modern French music. Another noted woman who will appear on the program is Mrs. James Lowry, dramatic soprano. Lowry is a prominent soloist and concert artist of Indianapolis. The public is invited to attend the vesper service at 4:30 Sunday afternoon at the Methodist church.

A new chapter, Sigma Tau, has been instituted at the Lamont school of Music at Denver, Colo., making a total of 44 chapters to be represented at the convention. Sigma Xi chapter of Los Angeles will send three delegates, it was learned here. Board members of the sorority, of which Mrs. Quinlan is a member, will have a meeting Saturday evening at the Conway hotel.

TEACH GIRLS HOW TO MAKE FRENCH DOLLS

"French doll" classes will be started at the Appleton Womens club under the direction of Mrs. John Neller on Oct. 18, it was announced at the club Tuesday. A class was formed last year to teach the making of these dolls, and several requests were made this year to have the course repeated in connection with the handicraft classes held each Monday night during the winter. Lamp shade making will follow the French doll classes, it was said, and the programs for classes later in the season will be arranged according to the demand special types of work. Some of the classes held last year included Italian cutwork and hemstitching, Assyrian embroidery, pillow-making, lamp shade making and others. Women who are interested in the special types of handwork will have charge of the classes.

PICK FARM BILL AS SUBJECT FOR COLLEGE DEBATE

Coaches of Midwest Schools
Pick Topic at Meeting in Chicago

"Resolved, that the essential features of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill be enacted into law," will be the question debated by the men's debate teams of the Midwest college conference, it was decided at a meeting of coaches of the conference in Chicago Saturday. Prof. Albert L. Franzke, debate coach at Lawrence college, attended the conference.

The practice of holding non-decision debates before high school and other audiences will be continued by the Wisconsin colleges, according to an announcement following a special meeting of the coaches of the five Wisconsin colleges represented at the meetings. Reports from other states indicated that the non-decision debate practice was growing in favor, Mr. Franzke said.

A second question concerning the abolition of the jury system was selected to be used by the girls' debating teams of the schools. Some of the schools in the conference will debate this subject but others probably will use the same question as the men's teams. The Lawrence coach said. Thus will be the first year that girls' teams will enter intercollegiate debates as separate units.

Wisconsin colleges were all represented including Ripon, Beloit, Carroll, Milton and Lawrence, and practically all of the strong farming colleges of Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, and Michigan sent their coaches. About thirty men attended the conference.

ARTERIAL JUMPER MAKES BOW TO COURT

John Kohl paid a matriculation fee amounting to $4.20 when he joined the arterial jumpers' class before Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Monday afternoon. Mr. Kohl was arrested by city police when he disregarded the arterial sign on N. Oneida-st and College-ave. The usual fine is $1 but costs increase the total.

Less than $200 of routing bills were approved and ordered paid at a meeting of the buildings and grounds committee of the county board of supervisors held at the courthouse Monday afternoon. The most important item was allowance of the account received for supplying cushions for benches recently installed in the various courtrooms, it was reported.

FARMERS TRYING TO CUT CORN BY HAND

Sporadic attempts by farmers to salvage part of their corn crops by hand cutting where the fields have been too soggy to permit working with machinery have proved only a makeshift at best and very little of the still standing crop is being saved, it was reported Monday. Rains Sunday added the final touch to an already bad situation and the need of salvage is being faced by nearly every cattle producer in the county, it was stated. Considerable corn was cut Saturday but much acreage is believed to be an almost total loss, it was brought out.

Kiwanians Expected to Discuss
Institution for Care of Aged and Children

The possibility of erecting a community project for orphans and aged for the county will probably be brought before the Kiwanis club at its regular monthly business luncheon Wednesday, it was reported Tuesday. The project is in the strictly embryonic phases at present but the need of such an institution is so acute that it seems probable that definite statement will be made in the near future. It was declared. The present means of caring for juvenile orphans particularly are far from satisfactory, according to County Judge Fred V. Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1873.

PAYS $100 FINE FOR OPERATING RUM STILL

WEATHER CONDITIONS
A low pressure area moving across the upper Mississippi valley and Lake Superior region during the past 24 hours has been attended by widespread rains, and by strong winds over the upper lakes. It has now moved to the Hudson Bay territory, and is followed by a strong high pressure area over the intermountain region and plain states. This is moving eastward, and is expected to cause generally fair weather in this section tonight and Wednesday, with slowly diminishing winds, and with temperatures near the seasonal normal.

FIRST JURY CASE IS SCHEDULED FOR OCT. 11

The first jury case of the September term of circuit court will be set for Oct. 11, for hearing before Judge Edgar V. Werner it is announced. The calendar is a comparatively light one and it is reported that several jury cases may be settled outside of court.

STAGE And SCREEN

VALENTINO FILM BROUGHT BACK BY REQUEST

So many requests were received by Mr. Louis Lutz of Fischer's Appleton Theatre, for a return showing of his career crowning triumph, "The Sheik," even before the death of the popular screen star, that arrangements have been made to bring the film back for a re-showing, which will be exhibited Thursday of this week, at popular prices. "The Sheik," while not the first of Valentino's films, is perhaps the best known, as it was the photograph that brought him to the height of his remarkable career. A new word was coined for the English language, namely "Sheik" which will not soon die in popular use.

On Friday of this week, a fourteen piece stage band offering symphonic arrangements of the latest popular hits will begin an extended engagement at this theatre, playing both matinee and nights, assisted by singers, dancers and comedians on a scale far beyond that ever before attempted in Appleton.

FAIRBANKS OUTDOES SELF AS A PIRATE

Douglas Fairbanks has long been noted for his lavish and ambitious picture productions, but in "The Black Pirate" now showing at the Elite Theatre he is reported as fairly having out-done his own previous efforts. It is a faithful, thrilling epic of the golden days of buccaneering near the end of the eighteenth century, and depicts vividly and colorfully the hectic life of the dare-devil roammers of the Spanish Main during that era. In every way it is the most stupendous production that Doug has ever attempted, and from end to end it is filled with the unique athletic feats that place a Fairbanks picture in a class by itself. In fact, in "The Black Pirate" the star has thought up a number of new stunts that are as thrilling as they are novel.

The entire picture has been filmed in a remarkable new color process known as Technicolor, that reproduces with exactitude every tint, shade and hue of nature itself. Unlike many other color attempts, Technicolor is entirely natural, minus all exaggeration, and restful to the eyes.

The cast supporting Fairbanks as usual is a notable one. The leading lady is the lovely Bille Dove. Hundreds and hundreds of hood-thirsty pirates appear during the action, and the leading actors are: Donald Crisp, Sam De Grasse, Anders Randolph, Charles Stevens, E. J. Ratcliffe, Charles Belcher, Roy Coulson and John Wallace.

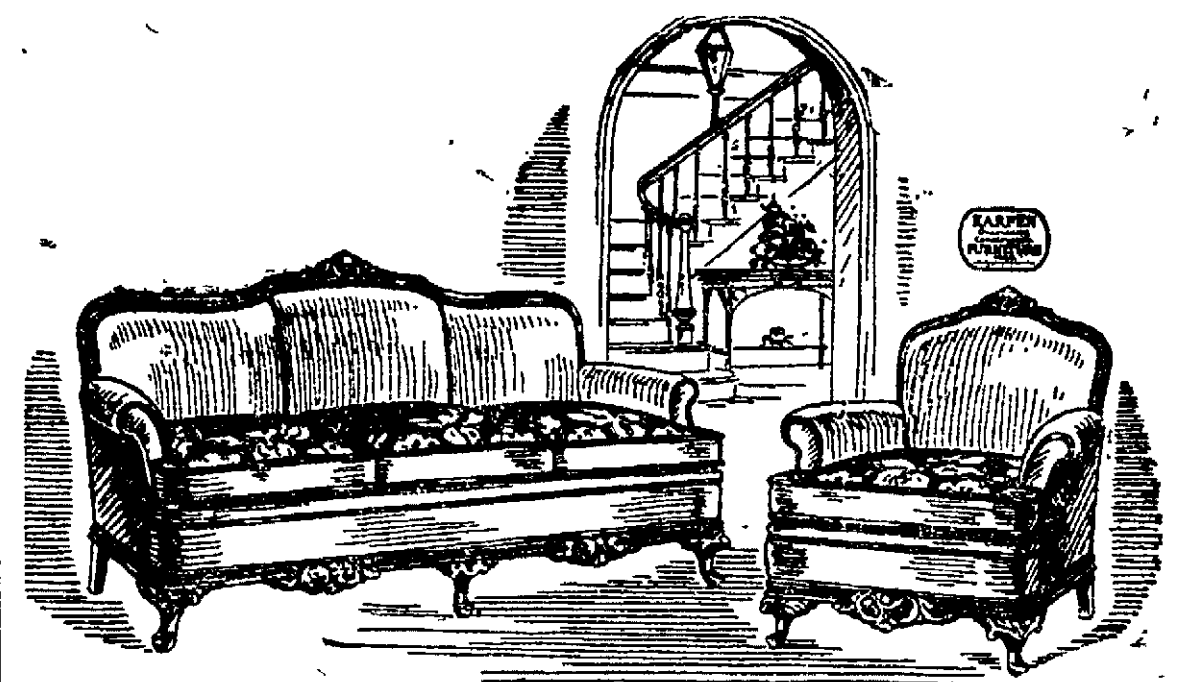

"DIXIE MERCHANT"

"The Dixie Merchant," the Fox Film production at the New Bijou today and Wednesday is one of the cleverest stories of Dixie ever screened. J. Farrell MacDonald is very human as the old merchant whose life is wrapped up in his horse "Marvellite" and who, though indolent, wins the love and sympathy of all who follow his career.

This delightful Southern epic, produced under the able direction of Frank Dorsage, is filled with all the ingredients that go to make a truly enjoyable picture. The characters are true-to-life, the situation plausible and the story simple. All the charm and interest of "The Chicken Wagon family," the novel by Barry Benefield from which the picture was adapted, is retained and enlarged.

The supporting cast is exceptionally well chosen. It includes Frank Roy, Edward Martindale, Harvey Clark, Claire McDowell, Evelyn Arden and Onest Conly. "Cherry-blossom," one of the fastest racing horses in California was secured to appear as "Mac's sellase" the little mare around whom the plot revolves.

APPLETON GRIDDEERS START WORK FOR EARLY GAME

Orange Meets Fond du Lac Squad In Valley Conference Battle At Fondy On Friday

Hamline-Ripon Clash Causes Change of Day; Shields Scrimmages Daily

With only four days of practice left before their second valley conference game, Coach Joseph Shields' Appleton high school grid warriors, fresh from a hard-fought win over a classy Manitowish high squad, went through a long workout Monday afternoon at the old Lawrence field. The Orange meets Fondy at Fond du Lac Friday afternoon so scrimmages was on the cards Monday, rather than the "rest" day usually taken after a hard tilt. Ripon and Hamline colleges meet in a Midwest conference game at Fondy Saturday, so the high school game was shifted ahead a day. There is no school Friday because of a teacher's convention.

Practically the entire practice was spent in scrimmaging in the mud and water which covered the field. Although the men were injured Saturday they showed the effects of a hard game with only a day of rest, and the scrimmage lagged at times. Tuesday, Wednesday and possibly Thursday afternoons will be used to work on Fond du Lac plays. The first two days will see the Orange trying the plays against the regulars. Assistant Coach DeForge scouted the Fondy-Green Bay game and returned with the Red and White collection of tricks as used Saturday. He will handle the second in the scrimmages.

Fondy has a speedy backfield and a good line and should give the Orange plenty of trouble, especially in the line. Its backs scored a marker against East Green Bay and lost another by Louie Hanson, who starred against Appleton here last year. The Red has a well-coached team and will be playing Appleton a revenge battle.

Last year, Appleton's weak squad held Fondy to a 3-3 tie here. The year before the Orange gave the Fruthrims their only loss, losing them the conference title and forcing them to take second for the season. The Orange has been bitter as the teams battled on even terms until Bleier blocked a punt and raced to a touchdown to win the game. Fondy is a hard team to beat at home.

The second held the regulars fairly well in scrimmages Monday. Johnston got several nice gains. Straight football was used with no attempt at trick plays. The boys found the going hard because of the muddy field.

LEGION BOWLERS START THURSDAY

Ex-soldiers of Six Wards Clash on 7 O'clock Shift at Elk Alleys

Six bowling teams will clash Thursday evening at the Elk alleys, when the Oney Johnston post of the American Legion starts its play in its 1926-27 pin loop. The post has been split up according to wards and the teams will bowl each Thursday evening on the Elk drives. The league is run on a handicap basis. The league will run from Oct. 7 to March 24. All games will be rolled on the 7 o'clock shift.

The schedule:
Oct. 7, Nov. 11, Dec. 16, Jan. 20 and Feb. 24—First ward vs Second ward;

Stecker And Lewis Grapple For Heavy Mat Title Oct. 6

By Dan Thomas

Los Angeles—Now that Philadelphia has had its reign as the sport center of America the spotlight is centered revolving toward Los Angeles. On Oct. 6 all eyes will be turned on the "battle of the ages" at the Olympic Auditorium here. And they will be rewarded by seeing a real heavyweight champion rise to rule that kingdom where twisting necks, cracking ribs and busting legs are considered art.

Joe Stecker and Ed "Strangler" Lewis, both claimants to the world's heavyweight "rassling" title, will battle it out for supremacy. If there was a "natural" in wrestling, this match is it. Stecker is recognized as the ruler of the woods as the mightful ruler of the grapplers. In the east, Lewis is accorded the respects due a monarch.

The match is the outcome of the "assaults" war which has been raging as predicted by this writer some weeks ago.

Promoter Lou Duro and Stecker had been conducting wrestling in Los Angeles to suit themselves. Then came John De Palma and the Lewis clan to dispute Duro's monopoly.

Immediately the mud started to fly between Stecker and Lewis, whose animosity for each other is at a high pitch. Things got so bad that Seth Street, chairman of the California box-

LAWRENCE AND RIPON LEADERS OLD RIVALS

When Coach Mark Catlin's Blue and White grid warriors invade Ripon on Oct. 23 to furnish the feature of the Ripon college homecoming celebration, two rival captains will also stage a homecoming. The occasion is the twelfth anniversary of their opposing each other on the chalk-marked field.

The captains, Marvin "Moco" Counsell, Lawrence, and Melvin Ure, Ripon, began their rivalry twelve years ago at Neillsville when each led "hard-boiled" teams of would-be football heroes. While still in the grades, Counsell, the team's Blue leader, moved to Marshfield and in high school there played against Ure, a member of the Neillsville high squad.

And now as captains of college eleven playing their final year, their gridiron rivalry will end in an auspicious flourish, the Homecoming. Ure is a crack halfback and Counsell stars at tackle. Both earned their captaincies by their play in the last two years. Counsell was all-state and all Midwest lineman for two years while Ure was a teammate of the Blue leader on the mythical all-state squad both years.

COLLEGE WITH 108 MEN BUT REAL TEAM

60 Out for Grid Squad at Little King College; Have Good Record

Bristol, Va., Tenn.—Nestling between the quaint hills of southwest Virginia and east Tennessee and near the border line of the two states, there is a college in this city with 108 students enrolled. It is King College.

The Presbyterian Church lends its support to King College. Young men are fitted for the ministry.

But this college also turns out a football team; a rather remarkable football team for a school with but 108 students. And since 1921, when King College decided it would resume football, some unusual things have happened.

First, the team won all but two of its games in 1921. In 1922 it scored 408 points to its opponents' 23. One game was lost. In 1923 the King College team was dubbed the "Mountain Tornado." That season 507 points were scored.

The "Tornado" was the pride of this entire section and the envy of other colleges, of which there are several in this region. The following year, 1924, it has a successful season, but in 1925 suffered a relapse. Quantico Marines, Georgetown University and Tennessee Medical College defeated the King eleven.

This year another odd thing has happened. The "Mountain Tornado" has two regular captains. Arthur Hammerstrom, end, and Roger Williams, center, each of whom tips the scales at nearly 200 pounds, tied on three different occasions for the honor of being the team's leader. The plan is for one to have charge the first half of the game and the other the second half.

LOWLY RED SOX LOST ALL BUT ONE SERIES

Lee Fohl's Boston Red Sox didn't cut any unusual capers during the 1926 chase, but they can lay claim to at least one feat. That was the tying of one interclub series for the campaign. The Beantown gang broke even with the Browns, each winning 11 games. They lost to all other clubs.

Stecker And Lewis Grapple For Heavy Mat Title Oct. 6

By Dan Thomas

Los Angeles—Now that Philadelphia has had its reign as the sport center of America the spotlight is centered revolving toward Los Angeles. On Oct. 6 all eyes will be turned on the "battle of the ages" at the Olympic Auditorium here. And they will be rewarded by seeing a real heavyweight champion rise to rule that kingdom where twisting necks, cracking ribs and busting legs are considered art.

Joe Stecker and Ed "Strangler" Lewis, both claimants to the world's heavyweight "rassling" title, will battle it out for supremacy. If there was a "natural" in wrestling, this match is it. Stecker is recognized as the ruler of the woods as the mightful ruler of the grapplers. In the east, Lewis is accorded the respects due a monarch.

The match is the outcome of the "assaults" war which has been raging as predicted by this writer some weeks ago.

Promoter Lou Duro and Stecker had been conducting wrestling in Los Angeles to suit themselves. Then came John De Palma and the Lewis clan to dispute Duro's monopoly.

Immediately the mud started to fly between Stecker and Lewis, whose animosity for each other is at a high pitch. Things got so bad that Seth Street, chairman of the California box-

BADGERS SETTLE DOWN TO CORRECT PLAY OF SATURDAY

Weaknesses of Cornell Struggle Pointed Out to Cards by Coaching Staff

Madison—With the initial encounter of his 1926 football slate safely tucked away in the win column, Coach George Little and his staff are now busying themselves in remedying the weaknesses brought to light in the Badger-Cornell battle Saturday. Although Wisconsin romped over the collections from Iowa for six touchdowns and final count of 35 to 0, the Cardinal machine was not operating smoothly and must improve considerably this week in order to defeat the Kansas University aggregation.

With the exception of a shoulder injury to Paul Sheutte, sophomore guard, the Wisconsin squad suffered no severe loss in personnel in the opening contest. Coach Little held three of his veterans on the bench Capt. Harmon, Wilke and Burrus, and made frequent substitutions all through the game to relieve the first string men.

There will be very little rough work the next few days for the Badgers who carried the brunt of the responsibility Saturday. Blunders were pointed out in a blackboard talk and a few new players and formations handed out for use in the intersectional tilt with the Jay Walkers this week.

Tom Lieb, first lieutenant to Little, was far from pleased with the work of his line in the Cornell encounter. They played good defensive ball as was proved by the fact that the visiting team registered only two first downs. However, there is great room for improvement offensively.

The Wisconsin kickers were always rushed in getting off punts, by Purple Linemen who broke through the Badger wall. Several times and runs were checked before the ball carrier could get under way for the same reason.

The much heralded sophomores had a golden opportunity to exhibit their wares Saturday, and they did not disappoint the many fans who have cheered them through the early scrimmage sessions.

Shaw, the speedy batam back from Oak Park was easily the outstanding recruit on the field. Gracefully carrying his slight frame through many tacklers nearly twice his weight, this diminutive speed merchant registered two touchdowns, caught passes with ease, tossed them with great accuracy and ran back punts and kick-offs like a veteran.

Joe Kresky, sophomore fullback, was started at a half and gave a splendid account of himself for his first appearance in a cardinal suit. He hit the line well, picked his holes and was outstanding for his defensive play and blocking in the interference. Rose and Hall also stood up well in the fast company and have shown Coach Little that they may be good against the best this season.

The veterans in the line played well, as did the new men who replaced them, especially Sheutte, Carney and Wilson, reserve pivot man last season. Crofoot gave a splendid account of himself as a field general, and is decidedly improved over a year ago. Barnum and Kreuz gained consistently through Cornell's line.

The Badgers passing attack was impressive for the early season as they completed more than 60 per cent of those attempted. Five of the six scores were made possible by advancing through the aerial method. Not overlooking the strength of his next opponent, Kansas, Coach Little is bending every effort to erase the rough spots before the first Big Ten engagement with Purdue. Coach Phelan's men were forced to the limit at Annapolis Saturday, but exhibited a strong attack against the Middies.

SOX HOLD EDGE OVER CUBS IN CITY SERIES

Chicago (AP)—The sixth game of the annual series between the Chicago major league teams Tuesday was a crucial test for the Cubs, for the American leaguers needed only the contest to win the city title.

Charley Root and Red Faber renewed their pitching duel Monday and although Faber was relieved late in the game the White Sox don, 3 to 1. The victory gave them a three and two edge.

BRAVES WON THREE SEASONAL SERIES

The Boston Braves, despite the fact they finished seventh, won three seasonal series. They whipped the Reds, the Cubs and the Giants. Another, Pittsburgh, just nosed Bancroft's boys out, 11 tilts to 10.

BLUE COACHES TRY TO BOLSTER SQUAD FOR OSHKOSH GAME

Weaknesses Displayed Against Marquette Receive Attention; Bloomer Hurt

Lawrence college's quarterback problem took another setback this week with the announcement that Bloomer, who played the position against Marquette Saturday, had a rib cracked. Bloomer was 19 alternated at the position; a in 1925. The injury is not expected to cause any shift in the Blue lineup, however. The attack of the Golden Avalanche showed up several weaknesses in the Blue eleven and the coaches will spend this week in attempting to eliminate most of these by the time of the Oshkosh Normal game Saturday.

A strong punter must be developed. Many critics thought the Blues would have won the tilt had its punting department been able to come with Marquette's bootsmiths. Lawrence also was at sea against the Murray forward passing attack and the interference furnished the ball carrier was poor in most instances. These spots must be strengthened by Saturday.

The Normal crew looked strong in its victory over Northern State Normal of Marquette, Mich. Saturday. The rivalry between the Blues and Oshkosh on the gridiron always has been unusually keen. Last year a supposedly weak Oshkosh crew held the Blues to a one-touchdown win, surprising all concerned. The Blues will be prepared for such a "surprise" this year, prepared for such a "surprise" this year, the coaches say.

NO RESERVE SEATS
No reserve seats will be on sale for Saturday's game, but they will be sold at the gate at game time. The south stands will be reserved for Oshkosh Normal boosters.

CHANGE DATE OF BLUE HOMECOMING STRUGGLE

Requests of numerous alumni of Lawrence college have caused the Blue athletic association to change the date of the Homecoming football game from Oct. 30 to Nov. 13. Lake Forest college, a new addition to the Wisconsin-Illinois conference, formerly the Little Five, is scheduled to play here Oct. 30 and Carroll is here Nov. 13. The alumni believed that the Carroll game would be a closer and better tilt beside being more interesting to the older men. Carroll has been a rival of Lawrence for many years. Last year it won the state title. This year it has practically the same team and already is claiming the title. The Blue-Carroll game here is expected to be the deciding tilt of the championship fight.

APPLETON BOYS LOSE TO NEENAH GRIDDEERS

A team composed of football players of an Appleton junior high school lost its first game of the season Friday when it was defeated by the Neenah high school second team at Columbia Park, Neenah, 7-6. The teams were evenly matched and played on even terms the entire game. Neenah scored its marker to star in the second quarter and a Red player took a pass over the goal line for the extra point. Appleton scored in the third quarter but a drop kick missed fire.

KANSAS HAS REGULAR GIANT IN THIS CHAP

In Leo Lattin, Kansas has a real giant in football togs. Lattin stands 6-6 and weighs 215 pounds. He plays tackle and is a "tower" of strength in the forward wall of the Kansas eleven. Kansas plays Wisconsin Saturday.

Chicago—(P)—Mike Walker won a technical knockout over Shuffie Callahan, Chicago Heights (5.)

HAROLD PINDLE IN NATIONAL POCKET BILLIARD TOURNNEY

Local Man, Present State Champ, One of Ten Chosen for Big Tournament

Appleton and the state of Wisconsin will be represented in the National Championship Pocket Billiard Tournament which will be held in Philadelphia from Nov. 6 to 17 by Harold C. Pindle, state pocket billiard champion. The local boy took the title at the state tournament at Madison a few years ago and has defended it successfully since. Last year he met Pasquale Natalie, one of the best players in the game, twice, and put up a fine showing both times. Natalie is New York state pro champ, representing Baltimore in the national pro loop where he ranks near the top.

At the time Pindle played Natalie here, the crack pro stated that the local man played a classy game and would be among the best in the country in a short time. Pindle has been working hard to improve his game since then, making use of the experience gained by the battles with Natalie and the tricks learned by watching the Baltimore star. Pindle will go to Chicago for a week before the meet to practice on a five by ten table.

The tournament will be 15-ball continuous pocket billiards and will be held at the Elk auditorium in the Pennsylvania city. It is limited to ten players subject to an entry fee of $150 each and Pindle was one of the ten men selected from the entire country. The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., sponsor of the meet, contributes $3,500 so that the total purse will be $5,000. Each game consists of 125 points.

Money prizes will be awarded to the seven leaders according to their standing at the close of the tournament. First prize is $1,200; second, $1,000; third, $800; fourth, $700; fifth, $600; sixth, $500; seventh, $400. Net gate receipts also are prorated among the winners. The title also is awarded to the champion. Pindle is the champion of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. and the holder is subject to challenge every 60 days. June, July and August, excepted. Match stakes are to be $250 a side, winner take all.

In addition the player holding the championship is to receive a salary of $250 a month while in possession of the title.

Appleton Fans See Yanks Take Opener From Cards

Here is part of the crowd of 1,000 or more fans who congregated in front of The Post-Crescent Playgraph Saturday afternoon to see the Yanks defeat the Cardinals in the first game of the World series. Every play made on the playing field is re-created on the playgraph. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the rival teams battle in St. Louis, with the games starting at 2 o'clock Appleton time. If either squad takes all three games the series will be over. If the series still is undecided Thursday no game will be played Friday as the squads must return to New York for the final games. These will be played Saturday and Sunday, if games are necessary.

Orange Gridmen To Attend Badger-Kansas Grid Tilt

Madison — Fifteen hundred high school football players and their coaches will be guests of the University of Wisconsin Athletic department at the pre-season grid contests in Madison Oct. 2 and Oct. 19. Ten days ago invitations were issued to every preparatory school in the state, and to date 65 coaches have accepted.

RIPON CREW MEETS HAMLINE AT FONDY

Ripon—Coach Doehling is ironing out some of the glaring imperfections in his Ripon college eleven which romped over Northwestern Saturday, 28 to 6, and travel to Fond du Lac this week to clash with Hamline university of St. Paul. The Crimson coach will probably make several shifts in the line to make room for Hamline, veteran guard who was out with injuries. Wagener, star back, may also return to the Ripon lineup.

PLAYS IN NATIONAL TOURNNEY

State pocket billiard champion for the last few years, who is to be one of the ten players chosen to take part in the national championship tournament at Philadelphia from Nov. 6 to 17. Pindle showed a classy game against Pasquale Natalie, New York state pro champ, in two matches here last year and has improved since. He plays for prizes totaling from over $20 to over $1200 in the big meet sponsored by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. He is picked to finish fifth. Prizes are awarded the first seven men.

TREASURE HUNT WILL BE HELD THIS WEEK

Boys of Appleton who took part in the favorite baseball player voting contest conducted by the Post-Crescent and Y. M. C. A. this summer are invited to take part in the promised treasure hunt either Friday or Saturday. The boys chose Walter Johnson as their favorite. John W. Pugh, boys' work secretary, sent a number of baseballs to the Washington star to be autographed. They have not been returned yet but are expected late this week.

The balls will be hidden in some large, open spot and boys who voted in the contest will hunt for them after the world's series game which will be depicted on the Post-Crescent Playgraph on the Y. M. C. A. building. Each boy will be allowed to find one ball autographed by the famous hurler. Appleton's favorite. The balls for the hunt were donated by Schleifer Hardware Co., Basing Sport shop and Valley Sport shop. The day of the hunt will be announced as soon as the balls arrive from Walter.

before he gets out to pass territory where the same stunt means a penalty for interfering with the passer.

Here's some keen dope. Figure it out. Kaukauna beat Oshkosh, 19-6, and then West trimmed the Sewdusters, 27-0. Kaukauna and West meet Oct. 7. In the other game East beat Fondy, but Fondy scored once and should have had another. A Fondy man intercepted a pass and ran to the five yard line where he tripped and was downed with a clear field ahead. Fondy will be no easy foe for Appleton's rushing crew Friday but we expect a win. We also hope to see Manitowish beat West and hope some one trims Mainette.

In West's win Quinn scored four touchdowns as the receiver of passes. He's the boy to watch. Appleton is weak on pass defense and would have trouble with Quinn anyhow. The big sack-footer has his passer hurt the pugnacious high above his head and then leaps for it above the heads of the opposing backs with great success. His height and bulk enables him to complete most of the throws. About the best way of stopping him to is have a hard-hitting back block him at the scrimmage line on each play.

ST. LOUIS BOOMS BIG ALEX FOR NEXT MAYOR

St. Louis—(AP)—Thousands of persons who travelled many miles to see the Cardinals and Yankees play the third game of the world series seemed doomed to disappointment Tuesday. There was not nearly enough space to go around at Sportsman's park. Many of those arriving without tickets declared they had a "friend" who could get the precious pastebards for them.

"Glover Cleveland, Alexander for Mayor" was a sign displayed in a window during the cardinal homecoming celebration Monday night. The matter of Alexander's legal residence in Nebraska was evidently regarded only as a technicality.

Baseball commissioner K. M. Landis spent his first two hours in St. Louis marvelling at the demonstration given the triumphant Cardinals and refusing requests of individuals and organizations to present gifts to the players on the field.

The Cardinals were made the favorites in betting with no New York money in sight in St. Louis, where to bet against the Cardinals is treason. Odds of 5 to 4 and 4 to 3 were being offered on Hornsby's men to win the series, according to those supposed to know the situation.

Miller Huggins, former Cardinal manager who heads the invading Yankee host declared on his arrival: "I'm going to have a good time in St. Louis." He did not say how.

Dear Dave:
Just a word or two to the wise. Don't play up those Appleton high school stars so much, because they must make an awful come down after Kaukauna beats them. And the bigger they go the farther they have to fall you know. Kaukauna has a real football team this year and I'm backing them to win with flying colors.
A Kaukauna fan.

Actions Of St. Louis Fans Proves Darwin Is Right

BY MAJOR HOOPLE

St. Louis, Mo. — Egad, folks, this town is in the throes of din, hilarity, confusion or what have you. The one time peaceful citizens of this hamlet are trying desperately to prove the Darwinian theory and I must say that most of them are succeeding. One look at St. Louis and no judge would uphold an anti-evolution theory law.

On my stroll up town from the depot, I was made the butt of many a jest and jibe. Many people mistook me for the Mayor of New York, while one woman insisted I was Judge K. Mountain Landis and begged for a seat in one of the choice field boxes. The mere fact that I had seen the Cardinals defeated in the first game was the cause of much violence to my person. In a sidewalk scuffle, two very fine perfectos that I had borrowed were completely smashed and rendered unsmokeable, drat it. Every hotel is filled to capacity and there is not a telephone booth to be had for the night. One hotel clerk offered me a pool table and some rum in my shoulder, who said he was from Waxahatchie, admonished me to rub some chalk on my head before retiring. He certainly couldn't have meant my head was solid ivory.

At the request of the Mayor of St. Louis who spotted me in the hotel lobby, I am broadcasting an appeal for 50,000 automobile mechanics to rush to St. Louis as soon as the series is over. Nearly every auto has had its carburetor adjusted so that it will back-fire like a cannon crack every few seconds.

Consequently Twelfth Boulevard sounds like the Argentine. If Gene Tunney were here he probably would start hunting a repeating rifle and a tin helmet instead of boxing gloves. Oh, by jove, folks, the big problem St. Louis faces is not to win the world series but to find enough mechanics to reduct those back-firing carburetors after the big bout is all over.

Before going any further, I predict, from a safety standpoint that the Cardinals will win the opening game. I emphatically pick the Cardinals to win. (Who wouldn't with a rabid St. Louis, all covered with Red Birds, keeping a firm grip on one's collar while one is writing.) St. Louis is noted as a great fur trading center and as I am interested in fine skins, once having been a great trapper with Mr. Hudson on Hudson Bay, I am going to make it a point to visit the marts located near a large brewery, Ahem.

The hour is now 3 A. M. by my Siamese watch and really friendly. I must get to my reserved pool table. A large band is still parading up and down playing "A Hot Time in the Town Tonight." The piece was heard last night, as they never had occasion to play it in St. Louis before, ead.

"Jimmy says he can do anything he wants to in school," said a little urchin I overheard the other day. "He must be the teacher's pet."
"Nope. He's the teacher's petter," replied the other youngster.

WILD DUCK CAUSES COLLISION OF CARS

New London—When a wild duck flying almost straight at his windshield diverted his attention for a moment, Harry Allen, barber employed in the Roger Barber shop, glanced aside and in that moment collided head on with a Dodge sedan driven by Mr. Learman. The accident occurred on the mill road out of this city just beyond the North Western tracks on Friday. Both cars held almost the center of the road and due to a bend in the road the drivers did not see one another.
The fact that both drivers were traveling at a low rate of speed probably averted serious accident. As it was the cars were damaged to some extent, fenders and radiators bent. Neither Mr. Allen or Mr. Learman were injured.

HOW THE PILGRIM MOTHER

Kept Her Family in Good Health

A statue to the Pilgrim Mother was recently unveiled at Plymouth Rock, Mass. Through her we honor every pioneer woman who endured privation and hardships that a nation might live. Shoulders to shoulder with her husband she built a home in the wilderness and reared her sturdy sons and daughters. She cooked and sewed. She spun and wove for her family. When they were ill, she brewed remedies from roots and herbs—such roots and herbs as are now used in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
"A Massachusetts woman writes: 'I was ill run-down, with no ambition. I was tired all the time. Sometimes I would be in bed two or three days at a time, and the doctor would have to give me something to quiet me. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have had wonderful results from it. I felt better after taking the second bottle, and I am never without it in the house now. I have told lots of people about it, and they say it helps them, too.'"

Merchants and other people in Appleton who use mailing lists are cautioned by Postmaster W. H. Zuehlke to have these lists revised before the coming political and holiday season. To have these lists revised at this time means the saving of time and money for the merchant and the postal department.

Revising of the lists is done at the local postoffice at the rate of 65 cents per hour.

Vapors stop Colds

VAPORS reach a cold directly because they are breathed into the air passages and lungs. It is for this reason that Vicks Vapo-Rub brings such quick relief. When rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime—

It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled, while, at the same time, it loosens the phlegm and eases the difficult breathing.

At the same time it acts through the skin (like a poultice or plaster) "drawing out" the pain and soreness.

Most colds yield by morning to this double action of Vicks.

CONFIDENT OF DRY WEATHER IF OLSON IS BOSS

Madison—(P)—Rain holds back for Prof. Julius E. Olson of the University of Wisconsin, whose luck as chairman of the committee on public functions has won for him the appellation of "rain preventer."

Professor Olson has a long continuous record of dry varsity welcomes, homecoming, commencements, and similar outdoor functions. There is a campus adage that "it never rains on Olson."

The professors record was nearly terminated at the welcoming ceremonies for new students this fall, but the rain drops waited in the gloomy sky until the conclusion of the program, and then began to fall.

Aside from keeping the clouds under subjection merely by his presence at an outdoor gathering, Professor Olson teaches Scandinavian languages and literature, is chairman of the committee on loans and undergraduate scholarships, and is a leading exponent of the dramatist Ibsen.

COUNTY NEEDS $50,000 FOR ITS GENERAL FUND

The county has borrowed $50,000 for the general fund to carry on financially until the tax levy, it was reported by County Clerk John E. Hant-schel. Part of this sum was used to reimburse the highway department exchequer from which considerable money is diverted from time to time as funds are needed by one branch of county operation and not by another. The loan leaves the general fund still owing the highway fund $45,000, it was stated. In the course of the average year it is found necessary to borrow an average of considerably more than $100,000 for short periods of time to meet expenses pending the tax levy and distribution of finances, the county clerk pointed out.

STUDY PLANS FOR MIDWINTER FAIRS

Kaukauna, Bear Creek and Black Creek Are Making Arrangements

Tentative arrangements for several midwinter fairs are being discussed in various sections of the county, it was reported Monday.

The average year will show from three to five major indoor exhibitions in the county and almost innumerable smaller gatherings where farm products are predominant among the displays, it was stated.

Manufacturers of farm appliances take advantage of these community gatherings to display their wares at a time of year when the average farmer has more time for consideration of appliances and labor saving devices than he has when work is in full swing.

The social advantages and the possibility of disseminating educational information to large concentrated groups also play an important part in the accomplishments of the winter exhibitions, it was pointed out.

One of the most pretentious of these institutes is held annually at Kaukauna; others are at Bear Creek and Black Creek. Housing facilities are most often supplied by using a school house or centrally located hall.

WISCONSIN PAPER MILLS KEPT BUSY FOR ELEVEN YEARS

Little or No Unemployment in Paper Centers, Social Workers Told

Milwaukee—(P)—Wisconsin's paper mill industry has been "reasonably prosperous" and the paper mills of the state are seldom shut down, May or George W. Mead of Wisconsin Rapids, told industrial men at the industrial division of the Wisconsin Social and Civic Work conference here Monday.

Mr. Mead, who is president of a paper company, said the industry has been reasonably steady since the beginning of 1915. His address dealt with the stabilization of employment in the paper mills of the state. "Except for a slight recession," he said, "in the fall of 1918 immediately following the Armistice and again in the early part of 1921, the paper mills throughout the state have been in continuous operation. Paper machines are operated twenty-four hours in the day and are shut down for only Sundays and the four principal holidays in the year. With the exception stated, it may be said that all well-managed paper mills in the state have had no general unemployment problems for the past eleven years."

THREE INTERRUPTIONS

"Steady employment of men in this as well as in any industry is subject to three general causes of interruption: first, our complex industrial system is subject to crises and depressions. We all hope that time and experience will gradually correct this great evil. It is too large a subject to discuss here and in fact no single industry can undertake to solve the problem. We shall have to avert the evil so far as possible and then make the best of things in a time of depression until the storm passes. Second, we have what is called the seasonal fluctuation in business. This applies to all manufacture and trade. People buy and consume more of certain commodities in one time of the year than in another. Then, certain kinds of work can be carried on only during the summer or during the winter. Again rainfall is the controlling factor in the flow of the rivers; water power has a wide variation; paper mills depend upon water power and employ many men when the water power is good or few men when the water power is low. Third, we have what is called the turnover in industry."

"Seasonal fluctuation in the paper industry can be controlled to a large extent by management. A properly managed sales department will accomplish much in persuading customers to distribute their purchases as evenly as possible throughout the twelve months of the year. Distributors and consumers of all grades of paper are more and more convinced of the value of this policy. The industry has made great strides in the last ten to twenty years in this direction so that now seasonal demand need not be regarded as a great evil. Paper machines in Wisconsin are seldom shut down."

"Paper manufacturers are constantly building new additions and extensions. Careful and earliest management can make this department fairly stable. Many paper companies have regularly organized construction departments and manage to keep most of the men steadily employed in winter and summer. This is done by starting the work in the early summer and getting the buildings enclosed by the time cold weather starts in. Then all setting of machinery and other interior work can be carried on throughout the very cold months of winter. It may be said, therefore, that great care in management will result in fairly steady employment of construction crews in the paper industry."

er is low. Third, we have what is called the turnover in industry."

"Seasonal fluctuation in the paper industry can be controlled to a large extent by management. A properly managed sales department will accomplish much in persuading customers to distribute their purchases as evenly as possible throughout the twelve months of the year. Distributors and consumers of all grades of paper are more and more convinced of the value of this policy. The industry has made great strides in the last ten to twenty years in this direction so that now seasonal demand need not be regarded as a great evil. Paper machines in Wisconsin are seldom shut down."

WRISTON DELIVERS 2 SPEECHES IN SHEBOYGAN

What Ails Our Youth was to be the subject of an address by Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college, at a meeting of the Lions club college, at a meeting of the Lions club at Sheboygan at noon Tuesday. The president also was to speak before the Sheboygan Womens club Tuesday afternoon on America and Arbitration.

COEDS AT LAWRENCE REORGANIZE GUN CLUB

Coeds at Lawrence college will re-new shooting instructions started last year, it was decided at a meeting of all girls in the school interested in organizing a rifle club Friday afternoon. Bernard Herrick, 1925 rifle champion of the Wisconsin National guards, will act as instructor of the group which will meet at Armory G from 4 o'clock to 4:30 each Friday afternoon.

Twelve girls attended the preliminary meeting, but it was expected that more would join the club later.

Last spring more than 20 coeds were active members of the organization, it was said. Miss Norma Kitch was elected last year to act as president of the group.
